Treatment fees must increase

By HARRY BARNES

Press-Record Staff Writer
Revenue from Granite City's present system of fees for sewage treatment is insufficient to meet funding and operational requirements, resulting in a current fund deficiency of $563,449, City Council members learned Tuesday night.

At the same time, the aldermen were told that a revision of the rate structure for assessing residential and industrial fees for sewage treatment would require a 66 percent increase to meet funding requirements over the next five-year period.

The disclosures were contained in a rate review study by the Bert H. Allison & Co., a Granite City auditing firm retained by the City Council to study the rate structure and report on the condition of the city's sewage treatment plant funds.

As an added development Tuesday night, the aldermen were asked to approve a resolution transferring $58,878 from the income tax account to the treatment plant construction fund to help meet bond principal and interest payments due Saturday.

The resolution, noting that the plant construction fund balance was insufficient to meet the payments, was approved unanimously by the 13 council members present.

According to Nick Petrillo, city treasurer, the bond payment totals $239,038 and is due to the First Granite City National Bank as of July 1.

The Allison auditing firm said in its rate review that as of May 31, 1977, the accounts required under the bonding ordinance that funded construction of the city's secondary sewage treatment plant were underfunded by $220,990.

Based on unaudited figures, the review report noted, the city had a deficiency that had increased to $563,449 at May 31, 1978," the report said.

It added, "Operation and maintenance costs associated with sewage treatment have shown a marked increase following completion of the new (treatment) plant. We have assumed that these costs will continue to increase at the rate of 10 percent per year."

An analysis by the auditing firm, the review report noted, shows that a total of $1,607,712 will have to be received in income (over the next five years) to meet all expenses and required payments.

"This is an average of $1,721,342 per year for each of the next five years and is equivalent to a 66 percent across-the-board increase in sewer treatment fees," the report added.

In that study, the review report noted, "revenue from this source would approximate $150,812, while for the calendar year 1977 it actually was $12,785."

Trial is linking others to bribes

By GARY SCHNEIDER

Press-Record Staff Writer
As the federal case against three present and former Madison policemen unfolds this week in Alton, the question beginning to arise is just who is really on trial.

Related article about the federal trial is on Page 10 of today's issue

Madison Alderman Ronald Grzywacz, suspended police Sergeant Richard Krieschok and former policeman Edward Goclan have been on trial since Monday on federal charges of racketeering—in this instance, the use of official positions for illegal gain—and perjury, allegedly for lying to a federal grand jury.

However, testimony presented by government witnesses thus far in the trial has shown little evidence against either Krieschok or Goclan, while making sweeping allegations against persons in the Madison County sheriff's department.

Vice activity has been alleged in the Alton area, in Madison and on Collinsville Road. A great deal of testimony has centered around Grzywacz allegedly picking up "payoffs" from some taverns which housed prostitution and from some towing firms which allegedly paid sheriff's department representatives for tow calls received from that department.

Grzywacz's attorney, Norman London of St. Louis, has not tried to counter claims that Grzywacz did pick up envelopes of money from taverns, but has repeatedly contended that Grzywacz was collecting the money as an undercover agent conducting a corruption investigation at the request of Madison County Sheriff John Maeras.

Grzywacz contends all the money he collected was turned directly over to Maeras as evidence. However, the Sheriff has declined requests from Grzywacz to verify that the money was turned over to him, or to account for it, jurors were told.

Grzywacz's attorney has shown the jury a piece of paper allegedly signed by Maeras informing the Internal Revenue Service that Grzywacz had the sheriff's permission to discuss an investigation he had conducted into alleged corruption among some deputies.

In a grand jury transcript of Grzywacz's testimony Sept. 16, 1977, which was read to the jury yesterday, he was asked what Maeras did with the money, and Grzywacz responded, "Like I told the FBI (Federal Bureau of Investigation) agents, I hope it's in the evidence."

Grzywacz said he contacted Maeras about it and stated, "Maeras acted like he didn't know what I was talking about." He also stated, "He (Maeras) left me out on a limb."

Still in the grand jury transcript, Grzywacz said he told Maeras of about 20 deputies allegedly "on the take" and said the sheriff did nothing about it other than to raid some clubs.

A couple of deputies got promotions out of it and I had to pay the IRS (Internal Revenue Service) $4,000," Grzywacz stated, referring to tax money demanded by the IRS after it found out about

Will sheriff resign?

Sheriff John Maeras will end his service this year and be replaced by probably, Emil Toffant. That much was known long before this week's federal trial, since the sheriff didn't seek re-election and former State Police Captain Toffant won the March 1978 Democratic primary.

The sheriff—not a defendant and not yet given his "day in court"—has been mentioned in this week's testimony many times.

The references to Sheriff Maeras have been negative in nature that some observers have begun speculating that he may consider resigning before completing his second four-year term in early December.

If this happens, Toffant would appear to be the most likely choice to serve out the remainder of the term, a span of about five months. He has pledged reforms leading to increased efficiency.

All such speculation will evaporate if the sheriff takes the witness stand and presents a detailed, convincing defense of all his actions and non-actions. But anything short of such a bravura performance could lead to intense pressure for a letter of resignation.

Maeras is among the 50 or so persons scheduled to be called as witnesses in the trial, which may last through next week. Jury selection, opening arguments and initial testimony took place on Monday, followed by extensive testimony Tuesday and Wednesday, resuming at 9:30 a.m. today.

Toffant has not joined in the speculation other than to comment that, if any of those criticized during the trial "take the Fifth"—avoid testifying on

SHERIFF JOHN MAERAS

Maeras pleads 'Fifth'

Madison County Sheriff John Maeras and John Cooper, his chief of field operations, today pleaded the Fifth Amendment and declined to testify at a federal trial in Alton.

Both cited refusal to testify to avoid possible self-incrimination, Judge J. Waldo Ackerman announced as the trial resumed at 10:23 a.m. today.

Maeras' decision against testifying is expected to lead to demands that he step down from his elective office, courtroom spectators commented. The trial is that of Ronald Grzywacz, Edward Goclan and Richard Krieschok on racketeering and perjury indictments. No other persons have been charged, but additional persons have been mentioned in testimony as allegedly breaking the law.

Courts have power to cite trial testimony for potential consideration by grand jurors, it has been noted.

The dramatic announcement of the Fifth Amendment pleas followed a lengthy private meeting in the judge's chambers with prosecution and defense attorneys.

Another topic thought to be under discussion was the extent to which Internal Revenue Service information on the three defendants can be submitted for inclusion in the trial.

The IRS previously has questioned the three accused men, all of whom were associated with the Madison police department during the early 1970s.

It was noted that Grzywacz, spending, income and reported income match.

Some of the listed income on which he has paid federal taxes includes payoffs from a tavern

State funds up—and also the spending

Higher spending by various state agencies has partially offset the increased revenues realized so far in fiscal 1977-78, Comptroller Michael J. Bakalis says in his June report on Illinois' financial condition. The comptroller reported total revenues from the state's general funds in the first 11 months of 1976-77 — while the increase in spending during the same period was $286 million. One-third of state agencies reported spending increases of 10 percent or higher so far in '77-78 compared with last year. The general funds surplus so far this year — the amount by which revenues have exceeded spending — was $71 million through May, with revenues of $5,715,000,000 and expenditures of $5,644,000,000. At this time in 1976-77, spending had outstripped revenues by $14 million. And in 1975-76, the first 11 months saw a $208 million spending-versus-revenue deficit, Bakalis said. The "combined funds" balance on May 31, 1978, was $302 million, or $32 million higher than at the end of May 1977, and $96 million higher than the available balance at the start of the current fiscal year July 1, 1977. The combined funds include general funds and unbudgeted money in other special state funds, such as the agricultural premium fund. Bakalis, Democratic nominee for governor, said such funds could by statute and administrative authority be transferred to the general funds or used to support spending that otherwise would have to be made from the general funds. He said Governor James Thompson continues to be reluctant to use this authority. "These untapped surpluses," Bakalis said, "represent funds the state could use to support regular state programs but which the governor has chosen not to use. At the end of May 1978, the combined impact of these untapped surpluses was an understatement in the general funds balance of between $44 million and $56 million." Total cash receipts deposited in "all funds" — including earmarked funds which cannot be transferred except by legislative action — in the first 11 months of fiscal '78 increased by $278 million over comparable receipts last year. Bakalis said, "The major increases of $173 million in sales taxes and $129 million in income taxes were offset by major decreases of $147 million in unemployment trust deposits and $77 million in total receipts from federal sources."

Completes training as organ master

Marjorie L. Ellsworth has just completed a week of intensive training in selecting, installing and servicing large custom church organs.

Mrs. Ellsworth has been the accompanist for the "Singing Illinoisans," a statewide group of professional musicians, for 10 years. She also has found the time to be the church organist at Calvary Baptist Church in Granite City.

Based on her experience, she says that the task of selecting the most suitable organ for each church's special musical and acoustical needs has become increasingly complex in recent years.

She cites rapid advances in technique that reinforce traditional organ construction with advanced electronic technology.

Mrs. Ellsworth attended five days of instruction in Cincinnati, under the supervision of Robert Read, church organ product manager of the Baldwin Piano and Organ Company.

Baldwin has been in the keyboard instrument business for 116 years. Its specialized training qualifies graduates for the master organ guild.

$1.7 million overpass grant

The Illinois Commerce Commission has allocated $1.7 million to Granite City to aid in financing construction of the proposed overpass between the downtown area and West Granite City, it was announced at Springfield Wednesday afternoon.

The ruling also fixed at $137,000 the amount the railroads will be asked to pay toward the construction cost. The grant is made from the ICC's State Grade Crossing Improvement Fund.

City officials applied for the state aid more than a year ago and attended a series of hearings held by the commerce commission at Springfield.

Cost of the overpass has been fixed at $6.2 million. Design plans are now being made by the M. W. Architects & Engineers of St. Louis.

The ICC grant leaves the city with a balance of more than $2 million to be raised as its share of the project.

The Federal Aid to Urban System has allocated $1.6 million.

City Engineer Monroe Brewer said the city has been waiting for the ICC decision and can now proceed with arrangements to obtain the balance of the financing.

CITIZEN OF THE YEAR AWARD is presented Monday evening by Richard G. McIntosh, right, president of the Pontoon Beach Lions Club, to JoAnn and Andy Bukovac who for years operated the A & J Market. They were born and reared in Nameoki Township and have lived in Pontoon Beach since 1929. The couple were honored for the numerous acts of kindness they have performed for others over the years. The award was presented during the Lions installation of officers and community awards night.

Festivities

Robbins and Skeets and Frank.

Everyone is invited to attend.

Part of the five-day celebration will be a dance for teenagers on Saturday from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m.

Men and women's softball tournaments, which will start Saturday at Wilson, Worthen and West Granite parks, also are expected to draw a large number of spectators.

Concessions stands will operate during the same hours as the midway, Brown advised. Local groups and the booths they will sponsor include:

Mexican Honorary Commission, Mexican food; Boosters of the Fighting Warriors, chicken sandwiches; Granite City Athletic Club, barbecue sandwiches; Granite City — Amateur Hockey Association, Pepsi and Hockey School; Cub Pack 19, snow cones.

Moose Lodge 272, lemonade shakes; St. Joseph's Altar Boys, 7-Up products; Parents Without Partners, pretzels and corn dogs; Armenian Apostolic Church, Armenian food; North Steelers Booster Club, hot dogs and coneys; Italian-American Club, Italian sausage sandwiches; Explorer Post 10-33, sponsored by Granite City police department, pizza.

Others participating will be Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, serving as cashiers; Granite City Township Democratic Committee, dunking machine; Gloria Spence, sketching portraits; and Granite City Right to Life, information and educational material.

To climax the festival on Fourth of July, the night-time sky of the Quad-Cities will be illuminated with brilliant colors, bursting from star shells, and immensely high shooting aerial bombs making thunderous sounds.

The traditional fireworks display commences at 9 p.m. Tuesday, July 4, with area residents alerted prior to the show starting by a series of aerial announcer shells.

Vivid hues and flaring, intricately woven patterns will produce a brilliant ground display in the center of Wilson Park, site of the exhibition, which always is guaranteed to delight the viewing children and adults.

Several thousands gather each year in and around the park for the mammoth display.

About 20,000 people from surrounding communities witnessed the fireworks extravaganza last year and an equal number is expected Tuesday night, Brown said. Ground displays this year will spotlight some new themes and old favorites, such as:

Merry-Go-Rounds, Flower Garden, Crazy Wheel, Large Tree of Liberty, Uncle Sam, Falling Wheel, Fighting Indians, Space Star, Exhibition Wheel, three-piece Drummer and Fire set, and a 50-stick Niagara Falls.

In the grand finale, a 10 by 15 U.S. Flag will be created, along with a "Good Night" display. The final production will feature 84 variegated stars, 24 aerial reports and 36 assorted comets, it was learned.

Other fireworks to be used this year include assorted Chinese and Japanese shells, two, three and four break colors and flitter, fish, star and magnesium shells.

TRAILER STOLEN
A 1970 Lufkin flat-bed yellow trailer valued at $7,000 was discovered missing at 9:45 a.m. Wednesday from the C. and H. Transport Co., 10 West Chain of Rocks Road.

18 months prison term

Joseph C. Crimi, 55, Granite City, was sentenced to 18 months in prison Tuesday on a charge of transportation of stolen property, and given five years probation on a charge of conspiracy in connection with the same.

The sentence by Federal Judge J. Waldo Ackerman was pronounced in U.S. District Court at Alton where Crimi was convicted of the charges by a jury in March this year.

Court officials said the probation will begin when Crimi completes serving his prison sentence.

He is the last of six persons to be sentenced in the 1974 theft and transportation of antiques and statues belonging to Mrs. Helen Grobe of St. Louis, and the 1975 theft of glassware and jewelry lampshades from Tiffany and Kathryn Sinaiko of Quad Cities.

The stolen items had a value of about $400,000, according to federal authorities.

News notes

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled 5-4 Wednesday that a California medical school must admit Allan Bakke. It said race may be taken into account in college admissions decisions, but that rigid minority quotas must not be used to block qualified white applicants. Affirmative action programs may continue if there is flexibility, the court said.

IC Industries, which has won its fight to acquire Pet, Inc., said Wednesday it hopes to sell the Illinois-based pet food and Railroad to Southern Railway.

Independent Voters of Illinois endorsed Mrs. Dan Rostenkowski for governor, Secretary of State Alan Dixon and U.S. Senator Charles Percy.

Illinois said Tuesday it is sending letters to 30,000 unemphasized voters, but may be eligible for an added 13 weeks of benefits due to confusion over jobless compensation rules.

The Illinois Senate by 41-15 Wednesday accepted House amendments on legislation to give the state power to regulate all hospital rates.

A $30 million statewide roadway pothole repair fund received an 86-79 vote yesterday, one short of House passage.

Lots of hot air but no power problem

Mid-90s temperatures each day this week are causing increased use of electric power due to operation of air conditioners.

But so far, the area served by Illinois Power Co. seems to be "weathering" the siege of hot air with no major problems.

Edward Aggleague, former Granite City man who is now based at the utility's headquarters in Decatur, said today that Tuesday's demand in the 15,000-square-mile IP area amounted to 2,771 megawatts, 2% percent below the peak demand reached on July 15, 1977.

"Yesterday's top demand at any one time during the day exceeded Tuesday's but was slightly below the record."

Meanwhile, the Union Electric Co. is urging its customers to avoid operating major appliances between noon and 8 p.m. on such days as yesterday and today.

There was no sign of foul play, police said.

Mr. Wentz had a heart ailment and had been to see a physician last week, it was learned.

A veteran of service in the U.S. Navy, Mr. Wentz lived alone. He was employed part-time as a driver for a motor express firm in Granite City.

Mr. Wentz is known to have children in Indiana and stepchildren in this area.

Also surviving are a sister, Mrs. Louise Shelton, and a nephew, Jack Shelton, both of Cuba, Ill.

Funeral arrangements are given in the obituary column.

Barks infant is stillborn
Joshua Edward Barks, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger (Venus) Barks, 1120 Meridian Ave., was stillborn at 8:20 p.m. Wednesday in St. Elizabeth Hospital.

In addition to his parents, Joshua is survived by his paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William (Katie) Barks of Granite City, and his maternal grandparents, James E. Wood of Florissant, Mo., and Mrs. Louis Elmore of Maryville.

Funeral arrangements are listed in today's obituary column.

PASSENGER INHURTED
William Hagen, 27, of 2138 Cleveland Blvd., suffered abrasions to his jaw and pain to his back when an auto in which he was a passenger was involved in an auto accident early in the week. X-rays were taken and he was released.

Funeral arrangements are given in the obituary column.

BPW dinner party tonight in Madison
The Granite City Business and Professional Women's Investment Club will sponsor a dinner and jewelry party at 6:30 tonight at the Madison Recreation Center, Seventh Street and Lee Avenue, Madison.

The public is invited to attend. Proceeds will be used to help local handicapped children attend summer camp, according to co-chairmen, Ruth Milhouser and Ruth Walk.

New formula
How much of a financial crunch Illinois school districts will encounter in 1978-79 still is unknown. Legislators completed action Tuesday on a revised state aid formula but Governor James Thompson had sought less aid and may not approve it.

The Illinois Office of Education said its analysis of the legislation shows the Granite City community unit district is receiving $9,820,336 for 1977-78 and would get $9,993,596.

Madison schools would see their state aid rise from $2,050,198 to $2,501,165 and Venice schools also would get an increase, the IOE said.

DEPOT FIRE DEPARTMENT REVIVES AILING CHILD
Granite City Army Installation firemen who the individuals who helped restore breathing to a seven-month-old girl who was then hospitalized during the weekend. An earlier report said a Granite City ambulance crew provided the assistance.

All 13 Depot firemen have ambulance and cardiopulmonary resuscitation training. The child's family drove to the Army support center after being blocked by a train.

Property tax rebate plan sent to governor
California has its Proposition 13. Illinois has a Republican-sponsored tax relief plan, and busy efforts by Democratic legislators to advance their proposal, instead.

With 89 votes needed for passage, the Illinois House passed the tax relief plan Tuesday, but the Senate has not yet acted. The plan would expand "circuit breaker" property tax relief to cover 60 percent of all households, rather than focusing on senior citizens and the disabled.

Rebates are to be paid by the state to taxpayers with yearly incomes of $25,000 or less and who pay more than 3.5 percent of their income in property taxes.

F.R. Wentz, 52, found dead

Francis Raymond "Sarge" Wentz, 52, of 1728 (rear) Cleveland Blvd., was found dead at his home at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday by Richard Tate, who resides at the same address.

Police were summoned and Madison County Deputy Coroner Randall Irwin, who said Mr. Wentz may have died three or four days earlier.

Tate told officers he went to check on Mr. Wentz and found his door open. He was lying face down on the floor, next to the couch.

There was no sign of foul play, police said.

Mr. Wentz had a heart ailment and had been to see a physician last week, it was learned.

A veteran of service in the U.S. Navy, Mr. Wentz lived alone. He was employed part-time as a driver for a motor express firm in Granite City.

Trial

payoffs allegedly received by Grzywacz. He said that during IRS hearings on the income taxes, he contacted Maeras and requested that Maeras notify the IRS Grzywacz had turned all the money in to the sheriff as evidence.

When Maeras failed to back Grzywacz's contention, the IRS charged him the $6,000 taxes due on the payments he allegedly received, it was related.

The questions of whether Grzywacz actually was collecting the money during an undercover investigation for Maeras, and whether the money was turned over to the sheriff, are expected to be asked when Maeras takes the witness stand today in the trial.

Witnesses called by the prosecutors yesterday included Mayor Mike Sasyk of Madison and Major Robert Rizzi, chief deputy of the sheriff's department. Sasyk's testimony was cut short by the closing of court for the day and he was to resume his testimony this morning. He answered questions related to his controls over the police department and regarding attempts he said he has made to clean up prostitution and gambling in the city.

"In a small town, like ours, someone has to be giving approval to these things. Someone has to be in on the take," he said he told Bargiel.

Sasyk said he then asked Bargiel to conduct an investigation, without the knowledge of other officers. Later, "the town straightened out" without raids or other actions, the mayor testified.

A few months later, prostitution and gambling were again prevalent and Sasyk requested undercover aid from the sheriff's department, which resulted in a raid at Big Jennie's Little Place in Madison, testimony indicated.

Grzywacz and Goclan resigned a short time later and Kriesbok was demoted from lieutenant to sergeant, Sasyk recalled.

At the time, the police board declined to link the two departures and the demotion with any specific conduct other than contending that Kriesbok had failed to provide adequate supervision of night officers.

Rizzi testified that he had ordered a search of all the sheriff's department evidence slips for anything which could prove such an investigation had been conducted for the sheriff by Grzywacz.

Evidence officers were unable to locate anything put into evidence on the issue of Maeras, Grzywacz, John Cooper, then chief of detectives, of the late Capt. Demos Nicholas, who was supposed to be the only other person who knew about Grzywacz's secret investigation, jurors were told. Rizzi detailed several prostitution related conduct by the sheriff's department since 1970 and said that, to his knowledge, no places had been raided as the result of information developed by Grzywacz.

Taverns raided for prostitution included Myrene's Steakhouse in Alton, the Club J and OK Cafe in the Fairmont City area; the Marco Polo Lounge near here and Big Jennie's in Madison, he testified.

Under cross-examination, however, London painted the search of the records as being hasty and noted that one bit of evidence slipped from the sheriff in the records, but had been "overlooked" when evidence officers searched for any evidence slips from the sheriff.

That slip was for money from a robbery, unrelated to the current trial, he said.

The attorney said that prior to 1974, "everyone" had free access to the evidence area, and evidence compiled by Grzywacz and the sheriff could have been overlooked or removed from the area along with the evidence slip.

London asked Rizzi if he had heard rumors of payoffs to deputies and Rizzi answered, "Yes." "To Burns?" London asked. "No," was Rizzi's answer.

"Have you heard of a stolen car ring and Burns and Cooper?" London asked. "Yes," was the answer.

"Did you feel that your attorney was giving you bad advice?" Rizzi answered, "I felt he was giving me embarrassing advice."

London pointed out, "You were in a room by yourself, without your attorney. You had a choice and you took the Fifth. Your attorney can only give you advice."

Earlier in yesterday's testimony, John Pincher of Glen Carbon, said to be operator of a garage and low truck service near Interstate 270 and Route 111, testified that he paid $3 to $6 for every tow job given him by deputies. He said he was not sure what deputy collected the payments.

Pincher told of telling the FBI a different story and lying to the grand jury.

Roger Stunkel, owner of an Edwardsville towing service, testified he paid $5 per call for towing business and paid money once a month to Grzywacz for about six months. He said Grzywacz said nothing about conducting an investigation.

Stunkel said he lied to the FBI in 1976, but told the grand jury that he had made payoffs to deputies.

London noted that Stunkel had seen Sheriff Maeras between the time he talked to the FBI and the time he testified to the grand jury, according to his testimony.

Elaine Prince go to an Alton service station and pick up an envelope, which she then turned over to him, she said at the trial.

She testified, "I never saw Maeras receive anything from Ron. He stated that what he picked up went to John Maeras. It came out later in time that it was money."

At different times, she said, she had been questioned by Burns and by Bargiel on whether she knew of any corrupt deputies, and she said she refused to help them.

Referring to a letter by Burns which called some officials "crooks" and which became public without his knowledge, Elaine Prince testified that references in the letter attributed to her were "false."

Thomas Turner, assistant U.S. attorney, then asked, "Wasn't Burns actually promoted after the letter surfaced?" and she answered, "Yes."

Turner evoked testimony that the Prince family ran the Sportsman's Club in Madison for 17 years and asked if payments ever were made to police.

The witness responded, "Never in any way." Turner stated that if a club did not have prostitution or gambling, there was no reason to make payoffs.

Federal Judge J. Waldo Ackerman dismissed Wednesday's session at 2 p.m. during Mayor Sasyk's testimony, because the judge had another hearing in Springfield that afternoon.

Testimony resumed this morning with Sasyk.

He answered questions suggested by the report would increase the present monthly sewage treatment fee for an average household by $1.32.

Presently, the average household fee is $2 per month, or $6 per quarter.

The $6 per quarter would raise the fee to $4.32 per month, or $9.96 per quarter. Larger customers and industries pay fees on the basis of water volume used.

community-wide United Way effort. The voluntary work that Rea Morrison and Virginia Hamilton will be doing will make possible higher levels of achievement in our united effort to continue and boost the services of Tri-Cities Area United Way agencies and programs," Donovan commented.

Graduating from Bethalto Civic Memorial High School, where she was a member of the National Honor Society, she also attended Lewis and Clark Community College, majoring in business administration.

"We're glad to welcome Rea and Virginia to the United Way campaign team. Our opportunity to further strengthen our local United Way effort will be greatly helped by their volunteer service," Donovan concluded.

Sewer fees

Council members placed the report on file after they were told by City Clerk Robert Stevens that a representative of the Allison auditing firm will attend the council's next meeting in Wednesday, July 5, to answer any questions the aldermen may have.

The $6 per quarter increase suggested by the report would increase the present monthly sewage treatment fee for an average household by $1.32.

Presently, the average household fee is $2 per month, or $6 per quarter.

RESEARCH TO IMPROVE DEVELOPING COUNTRIES

The Agency for International Development is encouraging proposals for programs to improve the well-being of the poor majority in developing countries, according to Irving Anshel, director of the SIUE Office of Research and Projects (Room 2202-Rendleman).

Fields of research in which the agency has a continuing interest include: health, education and human resources development; economic development and distribution problems; physical and engineering sciences and technology; and environment, natural resources and energy.

The one on the left is known by its registered brand name... the one on the right by its generic (common chemical) name. The only difference is the cost. Brand name drugs generally cost more than generic drugs.

Begining July 1st, with Illinois' new generic drug law, your doctor and your Gasen pharmacist working together can often help you save money on prescriptions.

grounds of self-incrimination under the Fifth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution - it would heavily damage their continued effectiveness in office.

Younger brother of the late Madison Mayor Stephen Maeras, and aided in his Madison County campaigns by the present mayor of Madison, Maeras is a former Madison policeman. He served as county treasurer before being elected as sheriff in November 1970 and re-elected in November 1974.

No Madison County newspapers endorsed him for re-election in the fall of 1974 but he won by a substantial margin.

While the long federal investigation of his department was nearing a climax late last year and early this year, Maeras decided against seeking a third term as sheriff.

On Monday, July 3, the downtown Alton area will again be the scene of a fireworks display beginning at 9:45 p.m. and will continue for 45 to 60 minutes. Rain date is July 5.

The display will be launched from a barge anchored above the dam on the Missouri side of the channel at Locks and Dam 26. The barge will be anchored clear of the normal traffic pattern, but many small boats can be expected in the area and extreme care should be taken to avoid incidents, James A. Petersen, chief, Operations Division, Engineers Corps District, has commented.

FOLK MUSIC NATIONAL ENDOWMENT GRANTS

The National Endowment for the Arts has set a postmark deadline of Oct. 1, 1978, for applications for 1978-79 fiscal year folk music program grants. Categories of grants that will be supported are folk music presentations, projects designed to document, preserve and disseminate living musical traditions, and individuals to study with master traditional artists.

Additional information on National Endowment for the Arts grants and guidelines are available in the SIUE Office of Research and Projects, located in Room 2202 of the John S. Rendleman Building.

Top performances by North's flag, rifle and pom pons squads

The North Guard Flags and the North Guard Rifles both won first place honors in competition Friday on the campus of Middle Tennessee State University in Murfreesboro, Tenn.

The competition was held at the end of a five-day workshop and camp led by widely-regarded teachers in their respective fields.

The Rifle Squad, under the leadership of Lisa Henderson, with members Janice Baehr, Darcy Jewell and Karen Kessler, was instructed by Terri Gentry, formerly of the Casper Wyoming Troopers, an internationally-known drum and bugle corps.

The North Guard Flags, under the leadership of Suzanne Atkinson and Susan Simmers, with members Jean Andrews, Patti Galbreath, Christy Gibbs, Phyllis Harnetiaux, Denise Hubert, Cheryl McIlvoy, Bridgett McNew, Nancy Winfield and Lisa Wilson, were under the instruction of Mark Campbell, choreographer and arranger of auxiliary units for the University of Indiana.

Their award-winning performances placed both groups at the success-level achieved earlier by the Steel City Belles Pom Pom Squad.

The Pom Pom Squad received the honor of preparing instruction tapes for instructing other pom pom squads in the United States.

The Steel City Belles, under the leadership of Karen Hattscher and Laurie Webb, assisted by Marilyn Szczepanik, with members Jacque Boatman, Lori Bushong, Gina Delevski, Jill Donley, Carol Fabry, Susan Galbraith, Gina Jones, Taina Kilponen, Laura Levin, Michelle Pittman, Jae Rainwater, Ronda Roe, Julia Rowden, Lisa Shup and Geri Szczepanik, were under the exclusive instruction of Mrs. Patsy Brown, chief choreographer and dance instructor for the Casavant Cavalcade of Music.

The Steel City Belles performed in exhibition only, because they were the only pom pom squad accepted for instruction at Middle Tennessee State University.

The squad performed six dance and pom pom routines for other competing groups as an exhibition.

The Steel City Belles are making a videotape of their routines to be used to help teach other squads in the coming summer months at Casavant workshops throughout the country.

Another feature of this instruction will be viewing of an hour-long videotape of the performances of the Belles and the North Guard in concert this past year, along with highlights of football shows and three-squad basketball halftime presentations by the group and the Granite High North "Marching Band from Steeler Land."

Field conductors Barbara Miller and Janet Adams also attended the week-long camp and studied under Dr. Charles Casavant, a leading exponent of the art of field conducting.

Thirty-five members of the North Band were accompanied by Director Robert D. Todoroff, with travel arrangements provided by parents of the group.

"You can expect some new looks in show design, field conducting, flag and rifle presentation and pom pom routines at Steeler halftimes this year, thanks to the outstanding instruction and dedicated hard work of these North Band members," Todoroff commented.

Cab driver is robbed

A taxicab driver told Venice police at 2:45 a.m. today that he was robbed of an undetermined amount of money in the 1100 block of Logan Street in Venice.

The driver, Robert Ballard of East St. Louis, told officers he did not know the amount of money taken.

Ballard said he had let a passenger out of his cab and was preparing to drive away when three men approached the car, grabbed him and struck him on the head. He said he was briefly unconscious, but saw one of the men running away.

He described that man as black, about six feet tall and weighing about 165 pounds. Ballard is a driver for the Checker Cab Co.

ARRESTED AT STATION

Alice Brown, 23, of 2400 Bryan Ave., went to the Granite City police station at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday to inquire about a towed car and was placed under arrest on a warrant charging her with deceptive practice. She was released on notice to appear in court on July 10.

HAZARDOUS RAIL CROSSING in Nameoki Township at Beeler Crossing between Reville Lane and Highway 162 is illustrated by the pick-up truck of the township's highway commissioner Frank Mehelic. Many motorists have had damage done to the underside of their cars due to the one and one-half foot difference in elevation of the two sets of railroad tracks. An engineer of the Illinois Commerce Commission met with township officials Thursday and inspected the crossing.

July gardening

By CHRIS DOLL, Area Garden Adviser

July can be a good month for the gardener, and here are some of the things to do:

—It's time to enjoy sweet corn. Corn that is maturing in the early July was planted in early mid-April.

The early-season varieties are good, but not as good as the mid-season varieties yet to come. There is time to make another planting or two for fall harvest.

—Side-dress long-season v with nitrim(33-0-0 or other formulations) at the rate of one pound per 100 feet of row. Keep the fertilizer off the foliage or irrigate following the treatment.

—Grapes are growing vigorously and the hot, humid weather in July favors rapid growth of diseases. Healthy plants mean good fruit, so bi-weekly sprays of captan or ferbam should keep diseases in check. Add malathion, azin or malathion for insect control at the same time.

—Cabbage is maturing and it will store in the garden for a week or two. Splitting of mature heads can be reduced by using a space to cut roots on two sides of the plant. This reduces water uptake from rain or irrigation.

—Cabbage worms are most effectively controlled by using bacillus thuringiensis, a non-toxic bacterial spray sold as Dipel, Thuricide or Bio-worm spray. Use according to directions on the package.

—The second peach borer spray is due July 10. Mix carbaryl (Sevin) at three tablespoons per gallon and spray the trunks and crotches thoroughly.

—Tomatoes are showing early blight and blossom-end rot. Early blight is when the lower leaves show spotting, turn yellow and drop off; spray or dust with tomato fungicides. Blossom-end rot infections rot when ripening; mulching is the best control.

—Keep trees, plants and gardens watered as needed. Apply enough water to soak into the root zone rather than very light waterings. Remember, an inch of water normally moistens six inches of soil, and it takes 0.6 gallons of water per square foot to equal an inch of rain.

—Cucumber vine with this year is generally from bacterial wilt. The disease is carried in the bodies of cucumber beetles and the plants are inoculated when the beetles feed on the cucumber plants. Kill the beetles before they feed, and the wilt will be prevented.

—Make another planting of cucumbers and snap beans early in the month. Fall garden crops of beans, broccoli, cabbage, spinach, and turnips can be made late in the month.

—Harvest onions when the tops have fallen over. Begin the curing process by undercutting the bulbs and leaving them lay for 24-48 hours. The tie in bundles of 10-15 onions and cure by hanging in a dry sheltered area.

—Spray ripening peaches and plums with either benomyl, captan, or sulfur to reduce brown rot (the soft rot of ripening fruits) at harvest time.

Heads life underwriters

Harry Thiel, district representative of the Lutheran Brotherhood Insurance Company in Edwardsville, will assume office as president of the Lewis and Clark Life Underwriters' Association on Saturday. He was elected president at the association's annual meeting in East Alton, John Sellers, State Farm general agent, is the retiring president.

Lewis and Clark Life Underwriters is an association of professional underwriters whose purpose is to improve life insurance underwriting and to promote better understanding of the use of life and health insurance for family protection.

Encapsulating Madison, Macoupin and Jersey counties, it sponsors consumer education classes in high schools to teach about life, health and casualty insurance. Last year, the Lewis and Clark Association received a national award for public service.

"My satisfaction comes from helping people maintain their standard of living by preventing it from being eroded by disability and death," Thiel said. Lewis and Clark is one of 33 associations within Illinois; there are 6,100 members of the Life Underwriters throughout the state.

Tuesday's testimony — Vice tolerated, pressure applied in order to obtain payoffs

The trial started quickly with jury selection taking less than two hours, followed by opening statements by U.S. Attorney Gerald Fines and chief defense attorney Norman London, who is representing Grzywacz.

Fines said he planned to detail "an uncomplicated" story of "three police officers who allowed themselves to be corrupted and corrupted others."

He contended that when Madison passed tavern closing hours in the fall of 1970, "some police officers took advantage of these hours," for personal gain, mostly in the solicitation of bribes to overlook closing hour violations.

Fines also alleged that Grzywacz used his association with Madison County Sheriff John Maeras to carry out the solicitation of bribes in the unincorporated areas of the county. Maeras is not charged in the federal indictments.

In his opening statements, London, a St. Louis attorney, contended that Maeras had asked Grzywacz to gather information on payoffs in the county.

London said that Grzywacz, 41, had worked on the Madison Police Department with Maeras and when Maeras first took over the sheriff's post, he did not know who he could trust, so he asked Grzywacz to conduct the investigation.

Grzywacz was to turn over extortion money collected to Maeras as evidence, London contended.

The first witness called by Fines and Cass Westland, attorney with the Public Integrity section of the U.S. Department of Justice, was 22-year-old Robin Young, daughter of the former operators of the Club J on Collinsville Road (Route 40) near Fairmount Park Race Track.

She testified that her late father, Walter Young, used to put money in envelopes and write the word "Man" on one of the envelopes frequently. Under cross-examination, she said the word "Man" designated the money was for the Madison County Sheriff's Department or the Madison Police Department.

She also testified that while Grzywacz was in their home in the fall of 1970, he father yelled, "I'm not going to pay." She also said that her father once taped a telephone conversation with Ronnie Young, which the jury heard Tuesday.

The second witness was Leota Buchanan, who worked as a maid in the Club J and solicited men for the prostitutes, according to later testimony. She testified to having seen Grzywacz in the tavern on numerous occasions.

Eight witnesses were called to the stand Tuesday by the prosecution, including Robin Young's mother, Charlene "Kitty" Young, who admitted the Club J had always had prostitutes, even when she and her husband operated it.

She said she and her husband were approached by Grzywacz and Deputy John Cooper, now sheriff, in the tavern. She said the sheriff's department, shortly after Mr. Young's mother's funeral, in August 1970.

She said they had been told to expect a visit, but objections from the defense attorneys prevented her from telling how a Madison City policeman had warned them of the visit.

She said when the two came to their home, next to the tavern, Grzywacz introduced himself as a Madison police officer and Cooper said he was a deputy.

"My husband asked them how a Madison City policeman could help us and Cooper said, 'He's a friend of John Maeras,' she testified.

Mrs. Young continued, "They explained to us that we were to pay the sheriff of Madison County in order to (continue) our establishment and operate a house of prostitution in the county of Madison."

"My husband said he didn't see how they could help us and they said they could harass us to death by parking county police cars in front, shaking our customers down and just cause great harassment," she told the jury.

She said they demanded $500 a week at first. "My husband said they should just give him $500 a week and let them operate the tavern themselves. We agreed to start out at $50 a week," she added.

She said within a short time, the amount was raised to $75 a week and then in January of 1971, it was raised to $100.

She contended they were told the increase was because the nearby OK Cafe, also alleged to have been a house of prostitution, had been closed, so the Club J would have more customers.

The Youngs made the payments weekly, with Grzywacz or someone else picking up the envelopes, until Jan. 22, 1973, when the tavern was raided, testimony related.

"During the raid, I called Grzywacz at the car wash and asked if he knew what was coming down. He said he wasn't aware it was going on and he would get back to us," Mrs. Young said.

The Club J was closed for a time and Mrs. Young said she was getting $25 out of payment had been cut to $70 while it was closed, until the liquor license could be reinstated.

She said her husband took $140, a two-week payment, to Grzywacz at the car wash two weeks after the raid, hoping the club could get its liquor license back.

She said no promises were made and after that, "We discussed reopening anytime we could get him (Grzywacz) to come to the telephone. We felt that was an obligation they had."

Mrs. Young also told the jury Grzywacz once said, "the sheriff had gone crazy," and said another tavern had been paying to have a Friday night game and the sheriff ordered it "busted." "He said there was no use," she testified.

The Club J reopened in January 1974, but remained open only 10 days before it was raided again. She said no payments were made during that 10 days. The Youngs then moved to Vandalia.

She said that when she and her husband were making payments to Grzywacz, her husband would give her several $20 bills and she would seal them in an envelope and put the word "Man" on the envelope. Ronnie would give them to Cooper on numerous occasions.

She alleged Cooper visited occasionally for about a year after the payments started, but then stopped coming. He hadn't been charged.

One time, in the summer of 1972, they were told the sheriff was going to inspect all Collinsville Avenue taverns for known police characters and other things, she testified.

The next day, Maeras and Assistant State's Attorney Zeke Smith came by and "looked at the bedrooms. Before the visit we made one look like a storeroom and said the other was for the night watchman," Mrs. Young testified. She said that Maeras and Smith left without incident, she indicated.

She also said Grzywacz would come to the tavern weekly to pick up the envelopes, sometimes in uniform in a Madison Police Department squad car and sometimes in a blue Cadillac convertible.

At times he entered and other times he waited by the back door for Mr. Young, she testified. Sometimes, he came with a young woman, Mrs. Young stated.

She also said that on three occasions, the Youngs went on vacation and told someone to pick up the checks from Leota Buchanan, who had testified during Monday's session of the trial.

"We were told by Ron we were not being hit too hard. They were getting $1,000 to $1,500 at Myrene's (Steakhouse) in Alton. Myrene asked him what cut he got and he said he got $25 out of a hundred. He felt the rest went to the sheriff," Mrs. Young stated.

After the Club J closed for good and the Youngs moved to Vandalia, they kept in contact with Grzywacz, since they were planning to open a car wash and Grzywacz and Gocian had formed O&G Equipment Co. to sell equipment for car washes, the jury was told.

Grzywacz came to Vandalia several times and brought Gocian with him at least once, to talk about the car wash business, she said.

Mrs. Young stated, "We talked about the raw deal we got, about payoffs and the sheriff." Later, in May of 1976, Mr. Young decided to telephone Grzywacz and tape the conversation with his daughter's tape recorder, she said.

Immediately after recording the conversation and playing it back in the presence of Mr. Young and their daughter, Mrs. Young packaged the tape for the mail and sent it to Fred Davis, FBI in Springfield, she testified.

After legal arguments, the judge ruled the tape could be played for the jury, and transcripts of the tape were distributed to the jurors.

In the tape, Mr. Young said he had just been visited by federal investigators, who had showed him a copy of a letter allegedly written by Deputy Gary Lee Burns, which contended several county officials were crooked.

A voice purported to be Grzywacz's on the tape said the speaker had received a copy of the letter. Commenting on Burns' writing that he may be killed, the voice said to be that of Grzywacz responded, "He was really scared of me at that time. He and Bargiel (Paul Bargiel of the Madison Police) were conducting an investigation at that time."

The speaker also stated, "I hope they (federal investigators) come to me. I can't wait. I'm going to tell them the whole thing." The voice also said, "Those... are going to set this whole county on fire. They haven't talked to me and I'm the only guy who knows what's going on."

Later the voice stated, "I feel like I been used." He also said he is in a war with several known criminals in this area, naming them, but did not get along with his fellow policemen.

"The (several criminal names) are my friends and the police are my enemies," the voice on the tape said.

Mrs. Young also testified that Grzywacz once discussed his resignation from the Madison Police Department and said it "was due to the payoffs from Big Jen's in Madison and that it had been a vendetta-type of thing." She also recalled him saying he felt the "girls from Big Jen's" had given evidence against him.

In cross-examination, London got Mrs. Young to say she had been given immunity from prosecution in return for her testimony; that she had been convicted in the past, on prostitution, crossing state lines in a stolen car and filing a false tax report.

He also confirmed by questioning that hypodermic needles and marijuana had been found in her home when the tavern was raided on one occasion.

London stressed that several points in her testimony were not in the transcript the FBI had made of her statements to them, including statements Grzywacz kept 25 percent of the money collected, and that she called Grzywacz during the first raid on the Club J.

London said he had information someone had requested $500 for the Madison County Deputy Sheriff's Association and contended that was the $500 Mr. Young yielded to her, including statements said her husband later decided to pay, "but backed off because the police were there."

The defense attorney also stressed that the tape recording by the jury made no mention of payoffs. Neither Mr. Young nor the voice said to be that of Grzywacz mentioned any kind of payments, he said.

The next witness, Mrs. Gail Oatman of Collinsville, a friend of the Youngs, stated she identified Grzywacz and Cooper to the Youngs' home in the fall of 1970 and that the two stayed there with the Youngs at least an hour. Both Mr. and Mrs. Young were "very upset and nervous after they left," she testified.

She testified that on another occasion, Grzywacz waved her outside of the Club J and told her to "tell Walter" that Ronnie was outside. Mr. Young then took a white envelope from the register and went outside with it.

Myrene Stuart, former operator of Myrene's Steakhouse in the unincorporated East Alton area, testified to having given several deputies payoffs, even before Maeras took over the Madison Police Department. She identified Howard Bradshaw, a former deputy and now a part-time employee of the sheriff's department garage, as one who occasionally would receive $10 or $20 "to let me know if they were about to raid me or something."

Mrs. Stuart admitted operating a house of prostitution at the steakhouse and said that after a deputy she had been paying regularly died, "we talked about payoffs to Mr. Cooper and to Ron." She said she did not know Ron's last name and did not recognize him in the courtroom.

She did say someone from the sheriff's office would take $150 every Monday from the steakhouse, often Cooper. In December of 1971, the steakhouse was raided and Mrs. Stuart was arrested.

She ended up paying a $600 fine and the steakhouse reopened a few months later. It was raided again May 27, 1972 and Mrs. Stuart said she could not recall if she was paying deputies at that time.

London asked Mrs. Stuart if Cooper or Grzywacz had given her a card with his name and phone number on it, and she said she had some kind of card once, but did not have to use it. One time she left a message with Grzywacz's wife for him to call her, but he never did, she said.

It also was pointed out that

Mrs. Stuart did not recognize Grzywacz and had never heard of Gocian or Krieschok.

Bradshaw then took the stand and said Mrs. Stuart would occasionally give him $10 or $15 for a drink. "She said if I heard of anything, to let her know."

He said he recalled telling her once that "John Cooper and Ron wanted to see her."

William Pullen, East Alton, a partner in an East Alton towing firm, testified he met Grzywacz shortly after Maeras was first elected in the spring of 1971.

Grzywacz was with a "Mr. Skundrich" and they talked about getting more county towing assignments from accidents, burned and abandoned cars, prisoners' cars and others.

"The practice in the past was the payoff goes to the deputies, now the payoff goes to the sheriff, not the deputies anymore," Pullen said he was told.

He also stated, "Cooper said the sheriff had knowledge these men had been sent to my station." Pullen said he never made any payoffs.

He said he met with Cooper one other time at Ralph & Charlie's Restaurant in Madison and said he could see by the county towing assignments lately that one or two other firms had been paying. I was told (one garage in the Mitchell area) had been paying $10 per car," Skundrich brought it out point blank," he stated.

Pullen said he does not know Gocian or Krieschok.

Paul Bruns, operator of a Godfrey towing service then told the jury he had paid $7.50 each time to the county for towing cars.

He said only that he put the money in an envelope and the boy working would give it to whoever asked for it when they came. He said he did not know who collected the payments and made only one payment himself. He said he did not recognize the man who collected that payment. He also said he did not know any of the defendants. Bruns admitted he had talked to the FBI in saying he knew nothing of payoffs for towing.

Later deadline for sr. citizen benefits for 1976 has been extended one year and applications for 1973, 1974 and 1975 has been extended nine months.

Vadalabene said that the purpose of the claim deadline extension is to provide all persons eligible for tax relief an opportunity to apply.

He urged all senior citizens and disabled persons who have not filed applications for 1972-1976 to do so prior to the deadlines specified in the new legislation.

Application forms for 1972-1976 are available from: Senator Sam M. Vadalabene, 300 Circle Drive, Edwardsville 62025, or by calling 656-1771. The forms are also available at senior citizen centers and nutrition sites.

IRA BERRY REPORTS BIG SALES INCREASE

Following a year in which it achieved a record 41 percent sales increase over the previous year, Ira E. Berry's Commercial-Investment Division is well on its way to an even bigger sales gain in 1978, according to Richard J. Eling, senior vice-president and director of commercial operations.

"We equalled all of last year's performance in just the first five months of 1978," he explained, "so from now through the end of the year we'll be setting new volume records every day." He attributes part of this growth to a lively market for commercial, industrial and investment real estate in both St. Louis and southwestern Illinois. May, he noted, was a record month for new listings, with $4 million worth added to the agency's offering.

The model program has been adopted by 40 additional states this year, and is being conducted during the July 4th and Labor Day holiday weekends throughout the nation.

Interstate 70 has been designated as a CARE route in Maryland District 11. Baird praised every member of the Illinois state police for diligence in promoting highway safety through vigorous enforcement of moving hazardous traffic violations and the 55 miles per hour national speed limit.

"The presence of our troopers during peak travel periods has helped hold fatalities down," Baird said. "I hope the motoring public will do its part during the upcoming holiday weekend to maintain that good Illinois record."

Energy audits here emphasize insulation

Illinois Power Company will continue through August its energy audits of customers' homes throughout its territory.

The audits, which began earlier this month, have been generally well received by customers who have been contacted by the company's advisers, a spokesman said here Wednesday.

The audits are being conducted by Illinois Power advisers during the summer months in the hope of motivating customers to insulate their homes. The audits are done without charge and without obligation to the customers by the advisers, who carry Illinois Power identification badges.

Energy use supervisors in the various areas are supervising the advisers in conducting the audits of customers' homes. Such audits were conducted in only four areas of the company last summer and have been expanded this year to include all areas served by IP. Energy facts, conservation checklists, insulation literature and other materials will be given to customers when they are called upon by the advisers.

The audits are under way in the Belleville, Bloomington, Champaign, Danville, Decatur, Galesburg, Granite City, Hillsboro, Jacksonville, LaSalle, Kewanee, Mount Vernon and Sparta areas.

The concentrated promotion of insulation is an attempt to reduce heat loss and heat gain in customers' homes.

Illinois Power has been carrying on an intensive insulation advertising program for the past several years, and is a member of the Edison Electric Institute's National Energy Watch program, which encourages energy conservation.

Anyone who has not been contacted and would like to have an audit made may call the company's local office, 876-1280.

Domestic steel production up

Domestic steel production hit its highest one-month total in nearly 2 years in April. U.S. mills produced 11,328,000 tons of raw steel during the month.

This was an increase of 446,000 tons from the 11,082,000 tons produced in March — and marked the highest steel output in any single month since May 1977, when it was 12,201,000 tons.

Figures released this week disclosed that through the first four months of this year, raw steel production reached 43,555,000 tons, an increase of 2,381,000 tons from the 41,174,000 tons produced during the same period of 1977.

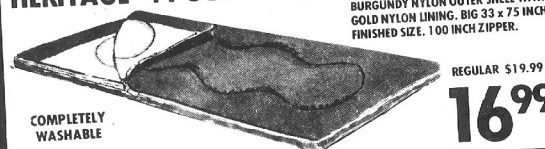

The steel industry's capacity utilization rate in April was 88.5 percent.

Of the month's total raw steel output, 6,923,000 tons came from basic oxygen furnaces, 2,830,000 tons from open hearths and 1,776,000 tons from electric furnaces.

Through the first four months of this year, BOF's had produced 25,271,000 tons of raw steel, electric furnaces had poured 10,429,000 tons, and open hearths made the remaining 6,856,000 tons.

Madison gives 'go ahead' for business development

By MICK STRANGE
Press-Record Staff Writer
The Madison City Council voted Tuesday night to authorize Madison Mayor Mike Sasyk to submit the Action Grant (UDAG) application to the Housing and Urban Development Agency.

The $220,000 grant request must be submitted by the end of July. Within six months the city will be informed if the grant application is approved or rejected, according to Al Hudzik, city controller.

"If they turn us down, HUD will give specific reasons and under the provisions of the grant HUD must act within the six-month time frame," Hudzik told the council.

"I feel confident the grant will go through since we are already started on a defined project to help ourselves. We have to have letters of intent to participate from 90 percent of our businesses. Al and I have contacted over half of them already and they are really enthused about the project," the mayor said.

"We have had only one flat turn-down and one possible rejection, but I'm not thinking again about it and I feel when he realizes the advantages he'll agree with the project," Sasyk said.

The total cost of the project to renovate and add to the downtown area is estimated at $930,000. The downtown preservation and revitalization program involves three major project activities:

Construction of a downtown shopping mall complex which will serve as an anchor for retail activities; make available no-interest rehabilitation loans to remodel store fronts between Second and Tenth streets on Madison Avenue, according to the Alpine Theme already begun; and to install public improvements such as decorative lighting, ramps for handicapped and landscaping throughout the project area.

The new shopping mall would be constructed at an estimated cost of $400,000 in the 1500 block of Third Street and 300 block of Madison Avenue between Third and Fourth streets. This mall would have approximately 11,000 square feet of new commercial space which could generate 20 to 25 retailing jobs, according to the mayor.

In addition to the shopping mall, a landscaped parking lot would be installed to improve shopper parking conditions and vehicular circulation in this portion of the business district.

Approximately $270,000 in private funds will be committed to this project through the First National Bank in Madison. This money will be raised through the sale of commercial bonds with the remaining cost of the project being covered by $135,000 in local Community Development Block Grant funds.

The shopping mall will be the cornerstone of the downtown redevelopment project.

Over $320,000 in private funds through the First National Bank in Madison as principal for development loans will be available for project area businesses, and renovations consistent with the Alpine look. The interest for the business loans will be paid through the use of $80,000 in UDAG funds.

The interest subsidy is being used as a direct incentive for private investors.

Approximately $120,000 in UDAG funds would be used to make public improvements in downtown Madison such as sidewalk ramps at each corner for elderly and handicapped persons in addition to repairing poor sections of sidewalk in the downtown area.

New lighting fixtures on the exterior would reflect the Alpine decor and actually improve the lighting of the downtown area, aiding the appearance and the safety of the area.

WEDDING DAY. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Clifford Caruso in the sanctuary of Pleasant Ridge Baptist Church, Collinsville. The bride is the former Diana Lee Donaldson of Granite City, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Donaldson of Collinsville, former local residents.

Diana Lee Donaldson, Lawrence Caruso marry

Clusters of foliage, tied with white satin ribbons, decorated the aisle at Pleasant Ridge Baptist Church in Collinsville for the wedding of Miss Diana Lee Donaldson of Granite City and Lawrence Clifford Caruso of Venice.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Donaldson of Collinsville, formerly of Granite City. The groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Caruso, reside in Venice.

Miss Linda Bennett of Granite City, soloist, was accompanied by Miss Kim Hawks of Collinsville at the piano.

Wedding selections included "Annie's Song," "Time In a Bottle," "If" and "Wedding Song."

On her wedding day, the former Miss Donaldson wore a gown of scalloped chantilly lace, designed with an Empire bodice, square neckline and full sheer sleeves, cuffed in chantilly lace.

The slightly gathered A-line skirt of organza over tulle ended in a deep flounce at the hem, trimmed in lace, and swept back toward the attached chapel train.

A lace covered camelot cap held in place the two-tier fingertip veil of imported bridal illusion, edged in lace, and she carried a cascade of silk snow-sung roses and white orange blossoms, accented with yellow garnet roses.

The bride attendants selected dresses of floral print voile in Nile green. The Empire bodices had an overlay of eyelet, with lace bordering the square necklines and trimming the long full sleeves.

A flounce encircled the gathered skirt and they held Colonial style bouquets of yellow and pink elegance carnations, yellow daisies and blue cornflowers, with baby's breath and velvet ribbon accents.

About 300 guests greeted the newlyweds at a reception in the Buffalo Park Hall, Maryville, after the service.

The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents at their home in Venice.

Mrs. Caruso graduated from Collinsville High School in 1972 and from Patricia Stevens Career College in 1973.

Her husband, a 1973 graduate of Venice High School, attended SIUE for two years. He is now employed as an inspector at the A. O. Smith Corp. plant here.

They are living in Granite City.

REV. J.T. BRYANT

Missionary to speak Sunday

The Rev. James T. Bryant, an Assemblies of God missionary to Upper Volta, West Africa, will be guest speaker Sunday at 7 p.m. at the Tri-City Park Tabernacle, Clark Avenue and Maryville Road, Granite City, the Rev. Gordon Nelson, pastor, announced.

During his last term of missionary service, Rev. Bryant served as the chairman of the field fellowship of missionaries in Upper Volta. He and his wife, Dorothy, supervised literature distribution and served as directors of the Upper Volta International Correspondence Institute which is a literature program for teaching and evangelism.

The missionary couple was also instrumental in an evangelistic move into the area of unreached nomadic tribes of the sub-Sahara North.

Assemblies of God missions in West Africa countries began in 1902 when the French government officials granted permission for the denomination to establish a work in Upper Volta and gave it a concession of land. Since then, 1,229 churches and outstations have been established and are now under the leadership of 17 missionaries and 80 national ministers.

The organization also operates 27 day schools for about 2,500 children and one Bible school at the present enrollment of 170. More than 45,000 Upper Voltians are members or adherents of the Assemblies of God.

Rev. and Mrs. Bryant attended North Central Bible College in Minneapolis, Minn., where he received his BA degree in Theology. They served as youth ministers in a church in Bloomington, Minn., and pastored the Assemblies of God Church in Barry, Ill.

Rev. Bryant also was the principal and guidance counselor of Barry High School for one year.

During a special missions rally, Rev. Bryant will relate some of his experiences in Upper Volta and explain the activities he plans to initiate when he returns to that country. The public is invited to attend, Rev. Nelson said.

Robert M. Wagner, chairman of the SIUE department of special education, has been granted a continuation award for the special education personnel preparation program to train teachers of the severely handicapped. The $20,000 grant will be used to support the teacher training program for another 12-month period beginning June 1, 1978.

The program has received over $100,000 from the Office of Education since the project was initiated in 1973.

Main goal of the special education personnel preparation program is the training of teachers in remediation of handicaps and management of behavior, Irving Antin, director of the Office of Research and Projects, said this week.

The program seeks specifically to meet the needs of those who will be working with autistic and other severely emotionally disturbed and severely mentally handicapped children.

In addition to their classroom work, teacher trainees gain practical experience in the university's on-campus facility for pre-school children, in the on-campus summer recreation and remediation program for exceptional children, or through placement in local schools as student teachers.

Over the past five years, SIUE has developed an Early Childhood Education program, a secondary education program, and an interdisciplinary program in conjunction with the project. The continuation award will be used to revise and expand the project, with emphasis on the interdisciplinary program, Antin said.

Visit backstage at Muny Opera

A visit backstage at the St. Louis Muny Opera presents a totally different aspect to the productions staged in Forest Park, as members of the Granitucky Business and Festival Women's Club and their guests discovered last week.

The group attended the opening production of the Muny's 60th season, viewing Howard Keel and Jane Powell in the colorful musical, "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers." Prior to curtain-time, the BPW members were guests backstage, visiting the wardrobe area and learning how costumes are arranged for the evening performance. Scenery being constructed in a large rear compound was inspected and the vast stage itself provided the background while other technical functions necessary to produce the show were explained by a Muny Opera employee. A fried chicken box supper was served in the nearby theatre pavilion as Miss Powell, Keel and cast members arrived for the evening performance. Club members attending were Lois Wetton, LaVelle Stephens, Ruth Belleville, Rosalie Stern, Olie Derr, Ruth Waik, Mildred Meehan,

Florence Moore, Pauline Weir, Lorene Sadrakula, Verna Lengyel, Edna Kohlbrecher, Sylvia Wright, Kathryn Smithson, Louise Smith, Gladys Newman, Marianne Lambert, Betty Nugent, Anna Mae Gates, Celestia Puryear, Charlotte Flowers, Hazel Rollins, Berabre Hodges, and Valerie Evenden. Among the guests were Wanda Stephens, Diane Wells, Martha Paulk, Dana Kelley, Shirley Rapoff, Ruth Nicholas, Kathy Morris, Judy Hoffstott, Mary Getz, Kathy Zboag, Pearl Kinney, Margie Wagner, Sharon Stephens, Ella Odum, Susan Gross, Nadine Ryan, Sarabelle Corbin and Carolyn Smith.

Service provides air traffic control, communications and navigational aid

On Saturday, July 1, just three days before the nation celebrates its 202nd birthday, the Air Force Communications Service (AFCS) — headquartered at Scott Air Force Base near Belleville — and its units worldwide will observe its 17th anniversary as a U.S. Air Force major air command.

Five units at Scott, which is responsible for engineering, installing, operating and maintaining a worldwide system of communications, air traffic control, and navigational aid facilities. It services Air Force and other governmental and civilian agencies.

Led by Major General Robert E. Sadler, the command has more than 48,000 military and civilian members operating with 500 units at 400 locations around the world.

They are backed up by 187 Air National Guard and Air Force Reserve units with more than 15,000 authorized personnel. The value of the Guard and Reserve units to the "total force" policy can best be illustrated, according to Gen. Sadler, by the fact that approximately 75 percent of AFCS' combat communications capability lies within the Air

Reserve Forces units.

The same can be said in the engineering and installations area, in that about 10 percent of the Air Force installation workload and 15 percent of mobile depot maintenance and overhaul of communications equipment are performed by the Air Guard.

The 115 Guard and Reserve Communications Flights (Support) provide over 3,000 authorized and trained communicators who support the Air Force mission. AFCS units at Scott include the headquarters elements, the 1842nd Electronics Engineering Group, the 1979th Communications Group, the 1866th Facilities Checking Squadron, the 1815th Test Squadron and the 2199th Computer Services Squadron.

The 1842nd is an independent engineering group reporting directly to AFCS headquarters. It is managed and staffed by highly qualified engineers who, for the most part, have extensive backgrounds in communications. The largest specialty group is the electronics engineers, who comprise approximately 40 percent of the total manning. Other specialties include civil, mechanical and electrical engineers, electronics and engineering. The largest specialty group is the electronics engineers, who comprise approximately 40 percent of the total manning. Other specialties include civil, mechanical and electrical administrative personnel. The group's responsibilities include: developing engineering and installation standards for use in planning, programming, proving, engineering, installing and testing communications electronics; meteorological systems, facilities and equipment; operation of a specialized digital network system facility to analyze and evaluate new digital technology for application to the Defense Communications System and other special purpose systems; and operation of a facility to prototype system and equipment configuration to check out and validate engineering installation standards and new installation techniques.

The 1979th Communications Group provides all air traffic control services and telecommunications support to assigned and tenant units at Scott Air Force Base.

Personnel of the group also train and assist four detachments, Guard and Reserve Forces. The commander of the 1979th wears two hats. He is the communications-electronics staff officer for the 375th Aeronautical Airlift Wing and also, as group commander, reports to the Northern Communications Area headquarters at Griffiss AFB, N.Y.

The 1866th Facility Checking Squadron performs the flight inspection on a continuous basis of approximately 39 active U.S. Air Force navigational aids and radar installations in the Western Hemisphere.

The squadron also performs flight inspection of navigational aids deployed by the 2nd, 3rd and 5th Combat Communications Groups. In addition, the 1866th provides support for training exercises conducted by the Air National Guard and the Air Force Reserve, and maintains the capability to provide emergency mission support as required by the combat communications groups.

Operational evaluations are periodically conducted at 91 Air Force installations with Air Force air traffic control facilities. At the 91, air traffic control procedures, controller phraseology, navigational and approach aids, Notices-to-Airmen (NOTAMS) and pilot information sources are thoroughly examined.

The 1866th Traffic Control and Landing Systems (TRACALS) branch has the task of evaluation of TRACALS complexes in their installed environment. Each evaluation's goal is to optimize system performance. It involves both airborne and ground in-depth study of Air Force air traffic control facilities.

The 1815th Test Squadron accomplishes all operational test and evaluations for communications-electronics and air traffic control and navigational aids systems for AFCS. As the operational test and evaluation focal point for AFCS, the 1815th tests systems being considered for acquisition.

Testing is conducted in a realistic operational environment to assure that system performance is evaluated under conditions similar to those in the intended operational environment.

Data collected during testing is then used to support the command's position — acquire the new system, acquire the new system with modifications, or do not acquire the new system.

The 2199th Computer Services Squadron provides automatic data processing services to the AFCS headquarters staff, the AFCS areas, Air Force designated organizations and other selected AFCS units.

As the organization supporting data automation, the squadron provides the design, development and implementation of "software" programs in support of automated management information systems unique to the AFCS Command.

In addition, the 2199th is the interface to the Air Force Data Systems Design (AFDSDC) for Air Force standard automated management information systems developed by AFDSDC.

The 2199th operates Honeywell 6060 computer systems, and functions as the interface between the AFCS customer and the computer.

Gen. Sadler concludes, "As the AFCS observes its 17th birthday, the personnel seek to anticipate the challenges of the future. And they reflect on the many major events which have made the command a forerunner of communications and air traffic control technology and expertise in 'providing the reins of command.'"

Kimberly Malear weds Army Sp/4 Andrew Dana

SP/4, MRS. ANDREW DANA. Their marriage was solemnized at Faith Chapel General Baptist Church, Mitchell. The bride is the former Kimberly D. Malear, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Doris "Bud" Malear, 2241 Iowa St.

Miss Kimberly D. Malear became the bride of Army Specialist Four Andrew T. Dana in a candlelight ceremony on June 10 at Faith Chapel General Baptist Church, Mitchell.

Plateau baskets holding arrangements of rainbow carnations in blue, pink, yellow and white green hues adorned the altar and burning tapers on each side provided the setting for the double ring service, performed by the Rev. James Aaron McNeely at 6 p.m.

Pianist Betty York accompanied Mrs. Carol McNeely, who sang "Turn Around," "There is Love," and "We've Only Just Begun."

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Doris "Bud" Malear, 2241 Iowa St. The groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Dana, reside in Pleasant Point Perry, Maine.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride chose a white organza gown fashioned in an Empire silhouette. The high ruffled neckline was trimmed with tiny Venice motifs, which also defined the sheer yoke.

The long, full sleeves were enhanced with matching appliques. Vertical bands of lace trimmed the full length skirt and hemline that fell softly into a long chapel train.

A lace camelot headpiece secured her fingertip veil, bordered with scalloped lace, and she held a round bouquet of white carnations and pink, yellow and white green daisies and pom poms with greenery and baby's breath.

Maid of honor was Miss Tammy Russell, and bridesmaids were Mrs. Danny L. McNeely Sr., a sister of the bride, and Darlene Borden.

They were identically styled floor-length dresses created with fitted bodices, scoop necklines and bishop sleeves, beaded with lace braided in blue, pink, yellow and white green.

Matching lace edged each tier of the bouffant skirts and they wore picture hats in shades to match their gowns. They carried colorful bouquets of white carnations, daisies, pom poms, baby's breath and greenery.

Crystal McNeely, a niece of the bride, was dressed in a long yellow chiffon dress with puff sleeves, edged with white lace, and a full skirt encircled with a wide ruffle. She held a basket of multi-colored blossoms.

Danny McNeely Jr., the bride's nephew, was the ringbearer.

Crystal Craun served as the best man. The groomsmen were Danny McNeely Sr., a brother-in-law of the bride and Robert Derocet, a cousin of the bride.

James and Marion Derocet, cousins of the bride, escorted the guests to their seats and also served as candlelighters.

A reception was held at Hope Lutheran Church fellowship hall. The rehearsal dinner was the evening preceding the wedding was hosted at Roustio's Restaurant in Collinsville.

The bride attended South High School and her husband is a graduate of Sheard Memorial High School, East Port, Maine.

They will reside at Fort Campbell, Ky., where the groom is stationed in the U.S. Army.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Malear was attired in an apricot polyester knit gown made with long fitted sleeves, a Queen Anne neckline, edged with Venice lace, and a semi-flared skirt. She wore a corsage of white carnations.

The Morning Circle of United Methodist Women met last week at Trinity United Methodist Church.

Mrs. Madge Talley, president, led the circle members in singing "What A Friend."

Prayer was offered by Mrs. Charlotte Beile and a special prayer was repeated for those who are ill.

The lesson was taken from an article written by Alexander Solzhenitsyn, the author exiled from the Soviet Union, which emphasized the need for courage to live one's life the way Christians believe it should be lived.

Mrs. Edna Jones gave the lesson topic.

A collection of baby items, to be given to those in need, was extended until the July meeting.

Members voted to continue meeting throughout the summer months. Mrs. Talley said the United Methodist Women's general sessions will be discontinued until September.

Morning Glories was the new name chosen for the circle.

After the business session, a salad luncheon was served by the president.

In attendance were Mae Lee, Betty Roberts, Nelda Brainard, Opal Landman, Thelma Morris, Laura Kent, Helen Harris, Lillian Hefferly and those mentioned.

The bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis McGinnis of Collinsville.

Summer blooms decorated the church for the 9 o'clock evening ceremony. The Rev. J. C. Hunter officiated.

Guests greeted the newly married couple immediately following the service at a reception held in St. Stephen's Hall, Caseyville.

Wedding music, played by the Starlighters, included "Sunrise, Sunset," "If," "Wedding Song" and "The Sabbath Prayer."

Jeannie Trotts, the bride's sister, was honor attendant and the bridesmaids were Mary Kay McGinnis, sister-in-law of the groom, Debbie Dressel, Cheri Gossett, Ginger McClain and Linda Purner.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Daniel McGinnis as best man.

Groomsmen were Jim and Jon McGinnis, brothers of the bride, Daryl Gehlauer, a brother-in-law.

The former Miss Yeager chose an A-line gown of white organza, designed with an Empire bodice, trimmed in Venice lace, a Queen Anne neckline and bishop sleeves, edged with lace at the cuffs.

The skirt and chapel train were adorned with Venice lace motifs and she wore a picture hat of chiffon with Venice lace around the brim and fingertip veiling attached. Her flowers were formed into a cascading arrangement.

The bride attendants were gowned in blue and yellow and held bouquets in complementary colors.

After the reception the couple departed for a wedding trip to Jamaica.

The bride is employed as a clerk at Schnucks Market. Her husband is an occupational therapist at St. Anthony's Hospital in Alton.

Seniors hear about swindle schemes

Francis Myer of the South-west Illinois Law Enforcement Commission described numerous schemes used to swindle elderly persons and others at last week's meeting of Granite City Chapter 1340, American Association of Retired Persons, Inc.

Myer showed a film, demonstrating such deceptive practices as sales swindles, burglaries, pigeon drop schemes and fraudulent home repairs.

He also discussed precautionary measures to take to prevent becoming a victim of street crimes and reviewed procedures to better protect homes against intruders.

Literature concerning the subject, in general, was distributed by the guest speaker.

Mrs. Elina Hoover, chapter president, was in charge of the business session and welcomed back Mrs. Neva Wertheis, secretary, who has been hospitalized after a fall. The financial statement was read by Mrs. Edna Isham, treasurer, and volunteers were sought in a letter from KETC Channel 9 to serve in a public subscription campaign. At least 20 people are required, Mrs. Hoover stated.

Mrs. Ruby Corbitt said a club picnic, scheduled July 12, will take place at the Granite City Township Building, 2060 Delmar Ave., rather than at Wilson Park. The club will furnish meat, bread and paper plates.

A trip to Quinsippi is planned Aug. 9, with reservations to be paid at the picnic. Mrs. Helen Bertacchi of the Special Events committee said.

Mrs. Helen Bergfield was introduced as the 1979 Touch of Nature excursion chairman.

Mrs. Isham reviewed a workshop she attended in Litchfield, and Mrs. Alvina Hankin discussed materials relative to first aid classes planned in the autumn.

Reports also were given by Caroline Lux, Carrie Hart, Oscar Ash, Peggy Gibbons and WED IN HIGHLAND. Mr. and Mrs. Don Edward Hunsche, whose wedding took place at the Evangelical United Church of Christ in Highland. The bride is the former Lisa Jean Robertson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard W. (Norma) Robertson of Highland, formerly of Venice and Mitchell.

Lisa Robertson becomes bride of Don Hunsche

The marriage of Lisa Jean Robertson and Don Edward Hunsche was solemnized in a candlelight setting on May 20 at the Evangelical United Church of Christ in Highland.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard W. (Norma) Robertson of Highland, formerly of Venice and Mitchell. The bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles (Vernette) Hunsche, reside in Alhambra.

Officiating at the double ring ceremony were Dr. Kenneth O. Mesle of the Highland church and the Rev. Arnold Bizer of Alhambra Evangelical United Church of Christ.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a pure white chiffon gown fashioned in an Empire silhouette. The Queen Ann neckline of alencon lace was etched with pearls and beaded lace motifs were on the bodice. Full sleeves were deeply cuffed with lace and the long train fell softly into a chapel train.

A matching lace and pearl covered headpiece secured the bride's hair. She carried a cascade of white orchids, stephanotis and ivy on a lace covered Bible, used by the bride's mother on her wedding day.

Miss Cathy Robertson, the bride's sister, was maid of honor. Robert Zohari served as best man.

Bridesmaids and groomsmen were Deb Brendel and Howard E. Robertson, brother of the bride; Carol Schwend and Dennis Courard, and Cheryl Haller and Joe Szoke.

Leslie Lunsche, the groom's niece, was flower girl and Karl Aldrich, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer.

Relatives and friends were escorted to their seats by Gene Hunsche and Ron Hunsche, the groom's brothers, David Schwend and Dennis Olive.

Candlelighters were Larann Aldrich, the bride's cousin, and Todd Hunsche, the groom's nephew.

Wedding music, presented by Dick Scheller, soloist, and Joan Schuetz, organist, included "Turn Around," "I Believe I'm Gonna Love You," "Whither Thou Goest" and "Wedding Prayer."

Howard E. Robertson, the bride's brother, gave a reading written by the bride's father to his parents when he was a young man.

The bridal attendants were dressed alike in ice peach matte jersey gowns. They were made with open necklines and deep collars, extending to capes in the back, and the long skirts were pleated.

The flower girl wore a white lace dress with a square neckline and short puff sleeves. Ice peach flowers and ribbons trimmed the long full skirt.

The bridesmaid and flower girl carried wicker baskets filled with painted daisies, purple statice and ivy, falling into a cascade.

A reception dinner and dance followed the ceremony at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Highland.

Serving at the reception were Linda Hunsche and Janet Hunsche, sisters-in-law of the groom, and Michele McGarry and Christine Rumpf, cousins of the bride.

After a wedding trip to Kentucky Dam Village, the couple now is residing in Alhambra.

Governor should sign physical education center proposal

"Cautiously optimistic" that Governor James Thompson may approve funds for planning a physical education building at the local university, State Representative Everett Steele, Glen Carbon Republican said this week he will talk to the governor about the Assembly-approved legislation.

Intent on budget balancing, the governor has not strayed often from his finding priorities, and did not include the project among his budgetary proposals this spring.

But he would be right in making an exception in this case, keeping in mind that Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville is the only Illinois public university lacking basic physical education, athletic and recreational facilities.

Aides of the governor have predicted he may veto the $641,000 measure, but Thompson also has been described as having an open mind on the issue.

Residents of this area may wish to relay to him their thoughts on the need for the physical education building, writing him in care of the Executive Mansion, Springfield.

Bright 25-year record at Camp Sunnen; top-rated again

We were about to write on Wednesday afternoon a few complimentary words about Camp Sunnen's 25-year history with the Chakokia Mound Boy Scout Council, when word was received that the camp once again has attained the highest national rating.

Under the local council's administration, the rustic, diverse site near Potosi, Mo., has never failed to achieve the top rating of "A" in inspections by representatives of the national staff. This year is no exception, the inspection team concluded yesterday.

Such inspections include the program, physical facilities and business management. Such a high level of performance has been attained by only a few councils across the nation.

Participants in this year's inspection included Donald Lang of the North Central Region, Boy Scouts of America, and Chakokia Mound Council President Leo Schermer, Council Camping Chairman

Reg Mennerick and G. Rollin Henn and Henry Hellich of the camping committee.

It will be recalled that under the leadership of Henry D. Karandjef, Camp Sunnen was obtained for local use starting in the spring of 1953, and a 370-acre tract was forever conveyed to this council on March 15, 1973, a gift from businessman-philanthropist Joseph Sunnen, the Sunnen family and Sunnen Products Company.

A plaque honoring the Sunnens was dedicated at the camp in 1968, with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sunnen present and Karandjef presiding as chairman of the camp acquisition committee. The Sunnens' generosity with the valuable, ideally-situated land and lake property is an outstanding example of selfless regard for active, positive-oriented young people.

The Chakokia Mound Council serving Bond County and southern Madison County, justifiably is the envy of other Boy Scout councils in the United States due to its outstanding summer camping area.

Trial provides insight into past law enforcement patterns

The federal trial that began this week in Alton is, undeniable, newsworthy — touching the lives of many people and reflecting on the caliber of law enforcement in some portions of Madison County.

Like most major developments, it includes both good news and bad news. It will be said if any individuals are found to have violated the public trust — and also said if persons are exonerated but have had to undergo public ridicule inappropriately.

Bakalis, Assembly leaders blending voices harmoniously

Is the Illinois General Assembly becoming overly politicized? It could hardly help being political, since nearly all senators and representatives run as Democrats or Republicans. But gubernatorial nominee Michael Bakalis is playing the Democratic majorities like a violin virtuoso this spring, as a strong effort is made to discredit Republican Governor James Thompson and build an effective platform for the Bakalis campaign.

It will be interesting to see how the aggressive tactics to get Democratic credit for various accomplishments will affect the popularity of "big Jim."

One wonders whether the escalated partisan activity could backfire if citizens view some of the legislative enactments as mistakes, or if they fear a lack of a sufficient liberal-conservative Assembly balance once "fighting Mike" occupies the Executive Mansion.

Gov. James Thompson has shown an ability in 1978 to relate to legislative leaders, rivaling in its impact the unlikely Thompson-Assembly "honeymoon" of 1977.

Assembly denying will of people?

To the Editor: The last six United States presidents have been for it. So are the American Bar Association and the American Civil Liberties Union, as well as the major trade unions and church groups.

In fact, most Americans are for ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment.

The U.S. House of Representatives voted 384 to 22 in favor of ERA. In the Senate, the vote was 84 to 8 for ERA.

Thirty-five of the 50 states have voted for ratification. That's an even 70 percent in favor of the proposed 27th amendment to the U.S. Constitution. The list of groups supporting ERA reads like

"Who's Who."

Here in Illinois the majority of the voters support ratification. Yet, the amendment faces an ominous future, requiring a 3-5 majority, instead of a simple majority, ERA has not passed in Illinois. A handful of legislators seem to be defying the will of the people.

These legislators have pledged to listen to the voters in their constituencies — the same voters they counted on to put them in office.

The legislators who continue to oppose ERA aren't getting the message. It's up to the voters to tell them what most of Illinois and most of the country wants.

Time is running out. Let's help make Illinois a better place for women of all ages. Men, too.

Let's urge our representatives in Springfield to vote for ratification.

The rights amendment — who actually needs it? Homemakers and working mothers, husbands and wives, widows and widowers, sons and daughters. Equal rights and the proposed 27th amendment aren't just women's issues. Everyone benefits.

Homemakers will receive recognition for the hours they've put in at home. Working women won't be stymied in their careers because of exploitive labor laws. Husbands, for the first time, will be able to draw on their

To the Editor:

An open letter to the congregation of the Bulgarian Eastern Orthodox Church.

Knowing many of you, as I do, I know that your first reaction will be "Mrs. Krotteff (or Verka) is not a member of the church and therefore has nothing to say about our problem."

I take the liberty of expressing my opinions because I am not even Bulgarian parents in Plevna, Bulgaria, baptized in the Bulgarian Orthodox Church by a Bulgarian Orthodox priest and a Bulgarian Orthodox godfather.

I have an additional right to express my opinion because my father was the first to see the need for a church home in this new country in 1906 and my brother, Dora Alabach Evangelou, and I are probably the last descendants of the organizers of the first Bulgarian Eastern Orthodox Church in the Western Hemisphere on Maple Street in Granite City.

I know the tenets of the Orthodox faith nor its canon law. I am a Protestant member of members of your church very much like you are today, arrogant, disrespectful, gossip-mongers and irresponsible. I did not leave because of any priest 22 years ago.

The Bulgarian Church withstood 500 years of Ottoman Empire rule, who neither forbids the people to attend their own church, speak their own language, change their names or read their books. Now you, a handful of people in this small community, are of a mind to change the name, the language and the priest?

The church in the Balkans withstood the Greek regime which did forbid the Bulgarian language to be spoken in church, school and home, burned Bulgarian literature and music, forced your forefathers off to learn Greek, and changed their names to conform with the Greek ending and not the double "I" as yours are today.

Is this what you want now in this day and age in this free country?

It was the faith of the people, the love of God and influence of the church that kept the people alive — and with courage that a better day would come — and it was with patience, brave men and women, bloodied, that that day did come again to the Balkans, only to be refought in the Tri-Cities by some who are not even Bulgarian, or Macedonian, if you will.

Changing the locks is nothing new because it happened to the first church in Lincoln Place a generation ago, and still the church survived.

God's House must be open to all people of any denomination who wish to find solace and comfort in His House because Jesus told us, yes, us because we are children of those who heard Him when He spoke on earth: "Where two or more are gathered in my Name, I will be there also."

Without exception, none of us know the tenets of the Orthodox faith nor its canon law. I am a Protestant member of members of your church very much like you are today, arrogant, disrespectful, gossip-mongers and irresponsible. I did not leave because of any priest 22 years ago.

The Bulgarian Church withstood 500 years of Ottoman Empire rule, who neither forbids the people to attend their own church, speak their own language, change their names or read their books. Sewers a big uplift for area

(Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce) Sedam in the span of human memory has been a project so exciting, so far-reaching and catalytic for the expansion of the overall community as the township sewer project — now a reality after the supreme effort and ultimate exhaustion of many dedicated people.

It is virtually the first effort of a complete political body for the general benefit of such a wide territory.

First of us never dreamed that the county group would support such a project over such a long period of time and against such great obstacles. But they did it, for which they deserve everlasting praise from the entire Tri-Cities.

It had to be frustrating, time-consuming, discouraging, but seldom have "so many owed so much to so few."

The unremitting drive of Dick Sparks and his capable committee — Homer Boothman, Harold Davis, Arthur "Cooper" Moore, Christ Paschoff, Louis Whitsell — Nelson Hagauer for his sheer pressure over the years, the complete County Board, the cooperation of Mayor Schuler and his City Council.

Ed Juneau and the engineering changes that had to be made almost daily. Harry Hartman's efforts to overcome the knotty legal problems.

Every individual who participated in the long struggle to bring about this sewer project, plus the community spirit shown by the Wilson-Sternberg venture, which held firm on their heels in spite of rising costs since it was originally made.

All deserve the everlasting credit of the entire community, which will now begin rapid growth with cooperation at its best.

Even the opposition will come to appreciate the project as they see increased development, appreciated property values, and the elimination of septic tank maintenance.

Certainly, the opposition had a strong feeling, but they had wives' Social Security benefits. Widows won't be socked with unfair inheritance taxes and working mothers, husbands and wives, widows and widowers, sons and daughters.

Equal rights and the proposed 27th amendment aren't just women's issues. Everyone benefits. Homemakers will receive recognition for the hours they've put in at home. Working women won't be stymied in their careers because of exploitive labor laws. Husbands, for the first time, will be able to draw on their from the Turks and before the coming of the Greeks.

The priest of the village, hamlet or town was the one to whom all turned because he could read letters sent from America to families back home and vice versa. He was the head of the community.

It would be interesting if one of you would suggest to the Librarian, Serbian, Syrian, Lebanese, Ethiopian, Armenian and especially the Greek to change their church name to American Orthodox Church.

I want to make another point here. When I received my citizenship papers a Judge Clark was the presiding judge and after giving each of us an American flag, Hungarian, Bulgarian, Armenian, Poles, etc., he asked us to sign.

"You will all be better American citizens if you strive to continue your traditions, your faith, your customs and your culture. Because then you will have the traditions, customs, culture of two countries. We welcome you to stay, but do not forget your past. For if you do, you will soon ignore ours."

You pretend to want to continue the traditions, culture, customs, language of the old. But you have lost sight of the fact that you cannot do so without the church, because all starts and ends with the church. The monks in the monasteries wrote the history of the people and the church by candlelight and in secrecy, because they were the only ones who learned to read and write.

It is true that many of your parents know what their parents knew and this goes back to the year 801 when the first Bulgarian kingdom was formed.

Most of them were illiterate when they came here through no fault of their own.

My own father taught Bulgarian in Patele, Macedonia, after the liberation

With might and majesty, Californians went to the polls and overwhelmingly sent a one-word message to their elected officials. It was this: ENOUGH.

Californians simply went to a legal tea party. And if this meant "a new American revolution," as Howard Jarvis put it, there was little concern, except among public servants, about the dire consequences that have been predicted.

The margin of almost two-to-one by which Proposition 13 passed did far more than roll back property taxes to 1 percent of the 1975 market value, and limit reassessment increases to 2 percent on unsold property. It changed a message heard by restive taxpayers and politicians across America, and indeed across the world. It was important news on every continent. It was the big topic of conversation at President Carter's breakfast meeting after the primary with congressional leaders; House Speaker Thomas O'Neill said Proposition 13 influenced upcoming budget votes in the House. And the National Taxpayers Union predicted the California result would be an example for 26 other states that are entertaining similar proposals to slash taxes and spending.

Although an early analysis of the Proposition 13 vote indicated strongest support among Republicans and conservatives, the four million Californians who favored it represented the broadest kind of consensus, which cut across party lines, across property owners and renters, across high and low income groups.

In the face of such a mandate, Gov. Jerry Brown quite sensibly has yielded his personal opposition to Proposition 13 and pledged his administration to implement it. In facing squarely what he termed an "unprecedented challenge," as he did before the Legislature June 8, the governor set an example that other opponents of the measure would do well to follow.

Attorney General Evelle Younger, the GOP gubernatorial nominee, and a supporter of Proposition 13, has announced his intention to defend it against every legal challenge.

The hope of invalidating this new constitutional amendment and thwarting the clear will of the people through court action promises to be illusory. Litigation, which could be a lengthy, laborious and costly forefathers were born in old Macedonia, which may have been under the Turkish or the Greek controls, but Bulgarian is the language of documents, passports, church affairs in every form.

To me, it is said that so many of you had the great privilege and opportunity to go to college, and graduated knowing so little. You learned from books that someone else wrote but you forgot your home training.

Your parents and their parents knew justice, humility, fair play, sincerity, honor, love of God, respect for all clergymen of any and all denominations, respect for teachers, honorable in their business dealings.

And these same people would today feel a great disgrace and failure by your actions toward the priest and the church today, and your lack of respect toward the bishop is beyond comprehension.

All denominations must have someone at the head and I can't imagine any one of their church members taking the unforgivable stand that some of you did toward His Grace Bishop Simeon.

How disappointed he must be in you who are born and raised in America but remember so little of respect for elders, regardless of position in life. You know that you never, never, spoke back to your elders under any circumstances.

What happened to your parents' teachings? What happened to your own self respect?

I am reminded of the story of the Pharisee and the Publican. The Pharisee prayed: "God, I thank thee that I am not like other men."

"I fast twice a week. I give tithes of all I possess. I go to the Temple to pray three times a day. And the Publican standing afar off, would not lift up so much as his eyes unto Heaven but smote his breast, saying, 'God be merciful unto me a sinner.'"

The story continues: "I tell you this man went down to his house justified, rather than the other. For he that exalts himself shall be abased and he that humbles himself shall be exalted."

Which are you in the stream of our history? Look into your conscience. Think of what your departed parents expect of you and think twice, no, many times twice.

I have been here a very long time, have attended the weddings of some of your parents, your baptisms in St. Cyril and Methody or Holy Trinity, funerals and I know your parents' thinking regarding the church — not you — built.

You added items here and there, but they built with their hearts and minds dedicated to the preservation of the Bulgarian Eastern Orthodox Church.

I think of Father Peter as the Publican — a mild-mannered, gentle, humble man to whom your parents gave a Christian chance.

Press-Record Bureaus comment — Key to tax limit success is whether it can spark building boom offsetting the revenue loss process at best, surely is no substitute for shoring up California's schools and local governments that have been stripped of about $7 billion in property-tax support.

The dangers and difficulties are very real, and they are not to be minimized. Fortunately, the fiscal convulsion at the local level can be controlled somewhat by the state's surplus of about $5 billion, which has been created by an economic boom and inflated income taxes — both a cause and a cushion for the taxpayers' revolt. This big reserve will provide at least a year's grace for local jurisdictions to accommodate themselves to some strict, unaccustomed setting.

Inasmuch as the governor has promised there will be no new state taxes to make up for the lost property taxes, California's schools and city halls find themselves between the proverbial rock and a hard place. Their only alternative is to reorganize along much leaner lines and, undoubtedly, necessity will spur them to be more inventive and efficient than they ever thought possible.

If they fail, the wrathful voters have signalled there will be new hands willing and able to cut the state's inflated tax pattern. For, make no mistake, Proposition 13 was much more than a vote for property relief. It was a pent-up protest against unbridled spending; it was the people's demand for more control over their public servants.

The potential difficulties are not without a bright side, however. Milton Friedman, the noted economist and Nobel Laureate, and Pres. Neil Jacoby of the UCLA business school, argue that Proposition 13 will spark a building boom of such size as to counterbalance revenue losses. Moreover, the new restriction on commercial and industrial property taxes should attract new business and make it easier for broadly perceived poor business climate.

The Boston tea party, to which Proposition 13 has been likened, should remind us that the real problem is not inciting a revolution but winning it. Making it work, California must make Proposition 13 work. Otherwise, we forfeit what may be our last chance to control our taxes and big, irresponsible government. More than this, we shall transform the admiration for us now being voiced abroad into scorn.

These benefits to become law. Unless the ERA is ratified by 38 states by March 22, 1979, the proposed amendment will die. In Illinois, it's time to look at the facts and decide if the Equal Rights Amendment benefits all.

Let's convince our legislators to make Illinois one of the 38 states that votes for equality. LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS OF ILLINOIS

Soccer stars tie, 0-0

By PETE HAYES
Press-Record Sports Editor
CHICAGO — They say it's like kissing your sister. But the two tie here last night in the second annual North-South Illinois Soccer Coaches All-Star game at Soldier Field was far from unsatisfying. It wasn't for the coaches, the players or the fans who witnessed the game, played as a preliminary one before a North American Soccer League game between the Chicago Sting and the California Surf.

Granite City's Mark and David Goldschmidt and Eric Thornburg were starters for the South team and played most of the game. Thornburg played the entire game. Mark Goldschmidt played most of the game except for about five minutes in the second half when he was injured. David Goldschmidt played all but about 5 minutes.

THE GAME pitted the best graduating high school seniors in Illinois against each other in a North-South setup. The concentration of soccer in the Northern Illinois high schools was shown by where the dividing line was drawn for selection to either squad — North Avenue in Chicago.

In addition to the three Granite Cityans who saw action, Granite City North goalie Mike Hill was selected to play, but could not make the trip because of illness. Collinsville's Greg Bohnenstiel also was selected, but declined to make the trip. The contest was sponsored by the Sting and Dr. Pepper.

Even though the game ended in a 0-0 deadlock, it was filled with action. David Goldschmidt, starting as a striker, got the first clear shot on goal of the game at the 42 mark of the first half. Taking a pass from brother Mark, he was clear for a split second. That was long enough for a shot on the North goalie, Glenn Brown of Glenbrook North High, who covered up on Goldschmidt's shot.

"I haven't played in over four months," said Goldschmidt. "But it sure felt good to get out on that field and knock the ball around."

"I started to get a little tired out there," said Goldschmidt. "But it was a great thrill, even if nobody scored."

SOUTH COACH Leon Busboom of Wheaton Warrenville got a scare when David Goldschmidt went down on his right knee late in the first half during a play to the left of the North goal. Goldschmidt had injured the knee in practice before the start of last season and was operated on, after the campaign, removing torn cartilage from the knee.

"It just sort of went out from under me on that Astro-turf," explained Goldschmidt. "There was sort of a quick pile up there by the goal... I may have been kicked, but I'm not really sure."

THE GAME may have been saved by South goalie Kevin Lyon from Wheaton Central High. He made five diving stops to twice rob the North's Bill Radamacher and three times take potential goals away from David Dickey. Radamacher played at New Trier West and Dickey at New Trier East last season.

"Radamacher was in our hair all night," said Busboom. "He's that type of player. He doesn't do things real flashy, but he gets the job done."

Lyons was chosen as the Most Valuable Player for the South team because good friends during the affair, the South team had a score to settle.

"They (the North) beat us 5-1 last year," he said. "We just wanted to show them that we knew how to play and that we weren't going to let them push us around."

MARK GOLDSCHMIDT was a victim of some of that rough action midway through the second half when he was cut over his right eye during a scuffle near the North goal. He was escorted from the field, patched up and returned to action after about five minutes.

"I caught an elbow in my eye," said Goldschmidt. "It wasn't anything real big. But it did kind of daze me for a second or two."

The North team seemed to dominate play for most of the second half, save an occasional outburst by the South. During a skirmish near his own goal, with 10 minutes left, Lyon made a last fullback up to center with ease.

"I really like a player like Thornburg," said Busboom. "He isn't one of the flashiest players out there, but he's consistent, has his mind on the game all the time, and seldom makes a mental error."

Thornburg seemed to take the whole affair in stride. "I'm really thrilled just to be up here," he said. "These are the best seniors in the entire state, and it's hard to say who does a better job than who. There's so much talent up here that it's pretty even."

But Thornburg said that even though the players on both teams became good friends during the affair, the South team had a score to settle. "They (the North) beat us 5-1 last year," he said. "We just wanted to show them that we knew how to play and that we weren't going to let them push us around."

Awesome...

Three All-Americans dot the 'AA' North roster in next week's IBCA cage classic

BLOOMINGTON — Three high school All-Americans will accent the Class AA North's appearance against the South in the Illinois Basketball Coaches Association All-Star Games at 7 p.m. Saturday, July 8, at Illinois State University's Horton Field House.

The talented threesome are Mark Aguirre of Chicago Westinghouse, Mitchell Anderson of Chicago Metro and Kevin Boyle of Burbank St. Laurence. These three combined for an amazing 98.5 points per game last season.

The Class AA North team will do battle with a Class AA South squad which is no less awesome than itself. Led by Collinsville players Kevin Stallings, John Belobradic and Steve Ray, the South should prove to be tough to handle.

The 6-7 Anderson was the state's scoring leader with a 43.5 average, and he also hauled down 17.5 rebounds per game. He surpassed the 40-point mark in 13 of 22 games and once was named Chicago Tribune Player of the Week after a dazzling performance of 61 points, 22 rebounds and 13 assists. Aguirre, 4bury 6-7, 220-pound forward, averaged 35 points and 15 rebounds. He was tabbed one of the nation's best 20 high school players last season by McDonald's. A forward on the opposing team, Lincoln's Chuck Verderber, was also on that 20-player squad.

Boyle is a smooth 6-6, 190-pounder who also played forward and had averages of 21 points and 12 rebounds. Boyle and Aguirre were on the first five all-state team selected for the IBCA by the Tribune, and Anderson on the third five.

Three other forwards who combine for nearly 60 points fill out that position. They are 6-3 Darius Clemens of Chicago Phillips, 6-4½ Phillip Gary of Thornton and 6-7 Jim Stack, a teammate of Boyle at St. Laurence. Gary was on the IBCA second five all-state team.

A first five selection, 6-7 Scott Parzych of state champion

Lockport Central, leads the list of pivots. Parzych averaged 21.4 points and 11.4 rebounds for the Porters.

The other centers are 6-8 Phil Collins of Orland Park's Carl Sandburg and 6-9 Craig McCormick of Ottawa.

The roster lists three guards — 6-10½ Raymond Clark of Westchester St. Joseph, 5-10 James Copeland of Chicago Gordon Tech and 6-1 Vernon Manning of Midlothian Bremen.

Clark teamed with IBCA first selection Isiah Thomas, a junior, to give St. Joseph perhaps the best one-two back-court combination of the Elite Eight at Champaign. Clark had 148 assists and 99 steals last season while netting 12 points. St. Joseph was runner-up to Lockport Central.

Copeland scored 21.8 points and emerged as Gordon Tech's second leading all-time scorer. Manning scored 20.4 points and added a notable 10.4 rebound average. Three alternates are available should any of the top 12 be unable to play. They are 5-4 guard Peter Brennan of Oak Forest, 6-4 forward Chris Faggi of Wilmette's Loyola Academy and 5-10 guard Steve Garber of Metamora.

The North's head coach is Ron Nikcevich of Lyons Township, LaGrange. He will be joined by his Lyons assistant, Lynn Deason, and Loyola Academy's Bill Gleason.

The AA game will be preceded by the Class A contest at 3 p.m.

A limited supply of reserved balcony seats at $4 and a substantial number of unreserved end seats at $3 are available through the Bradley University Athletic Office in Peoria.

Remaining tickets will be on sale at ISU's Horton Field House beginning Wednesday, July 5.

Tom Hennrich led off the third inning with a centerfield double. Keith Champion went through the hole with a base hit to advance Hennrich to third.

Three more in the fifth, Joe Parente took a base on balls and scored on a double to right by Randy Smith. Smith scored on a RBI double by Bob Stegmeyer.

Bethalto scored their first run in the top of the sixth and in the

Bethalto scored their first run in the top of the sixth and in the bottom of that inning, Post 113 tallied two more. Champion and Krevovich both walked and both advanced on a wild pitch. Both scored on an infield error by Bethalto.

Tri-City 2, Marissa 1 Tuesday, Post 113 again got good pitching out of its starter, this time Jeff Tretter. He went up against a strong-hitting Marissa club and allowed it only six hits.

"We're really pleased with our pitching staff," said Tri-City Coach Babe Champion. "We got some good relief work from Al Yount out there which really picked us up."

Tri-City jumped out to a 2-0 lead after two innings and had to hold off a couple of Marissa rallies to hold onto the lead.

Tri-City 5, East St. Louis 4 Doug Rains (2-1) pitched a six hitter to the team from E. St. Louis. Rains struck out six, walked six, and allowed four runs, two earned.

In the first, Tri-City tallied two. Hennrich went to second on a two base error and on a wild pitch went to third. Larry Heagy walked and went to second on the same wild pitch. Krevovich singled both runners home, 2-0.

East St. Louis tied the game, then led going in the seventh. Rains got to second on an overthrow to first and went to third on a ground ball out by Smith. Schaus singled to allow Rains to score and tie the game at three. Parente went in to run for Schaus and went to second on a hit hit by Hennrich.

Champion, with a single, put Tri-City on top. Parente and Hennrich scored on the hit, 5-3. East St. Louis scored an additional run in the seventh.

Friday night the two top teams go at it. Tri-City and Cahokia, at South. On Saturday, Tri-City travels to Collinsville for a 6 p.m. single game.

Mercer to host District tourney

GRANITE CITY — Mercer of the Illinois Inter-City League will play host for the 1978 National Baseball Congress District Tournament to be held at three St. Louis area sites July 8 through July 21. The tournament, the first of its kind ever in Southern Illinois, will send its eventual winner to the state championships in Lockport, Ill., the weekend of July 28.

Four district champions will meet for a double-elimination tournament which will send the top two teams to Wichita, Kan., in early August for a bid at the national title.

Pat Peterson of Mercers, the tournament director, commented on the first annual affair. "We pushed for the tournament to help give the good baseball in Southern Illinois some exposure... a change, get away from just league play."

"It's a chance for the college players to be seen a little more and also face good competition."

"Tournaments like these are what really attract the major league scouting bureaus because there are more than two teams in a certain site."

In this case, there will be seven teams involved, three from the Inter-City circuit, Highland-Pierron and Collinsville will join Mercer to represent the Inter-City League. The other four teams are Millstadt, Centralia, Shiloh and Valmeyer of the Mon-Clair League.

Peterson added that the tournament pairings will be as a result of an open draw and they should be released by this Friday.

Here are the sites and times for 1978 NBC District Tournament:

July 8 at SIU-Edwardsville Varsity Field, games at 11:00 a.m., 2:00 p.m., 5:00 p.m.
July 10 at Highland-Pierron Park, 8:00 p.m.
July 11 at Highland-Pierron Park, 8:00 p.m.

They played TOGETHER

CHICAGO — Instead of playing against each other, three perennial soccer "enemies" played together here last night in the second annual Illinois Soccer Coaches North-South All-Star game played on Soldier Field.

Eric Thornburg of Granite City North, Mark Goldschmidt of Granite City South, David Goldschmidt of Granite City South.

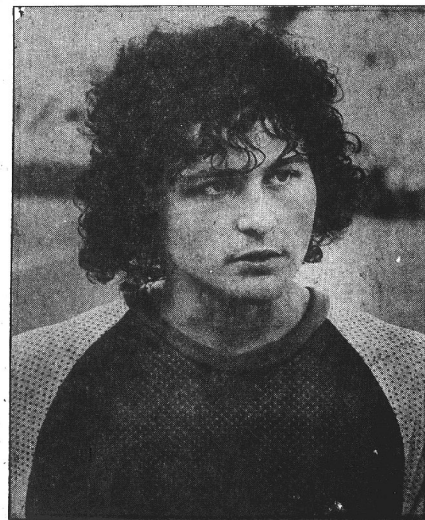

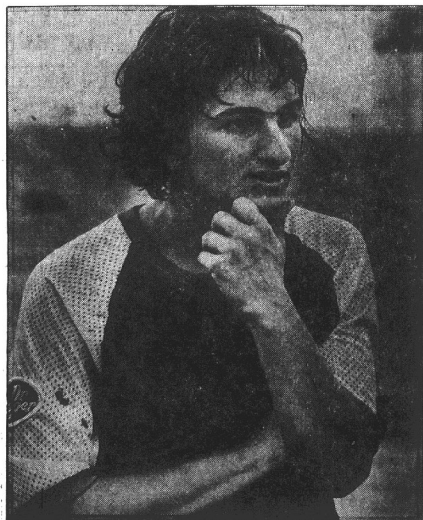

The three have been pitted against each other the last four years in do-or-die battles for the soccer championship of Granite City. Last night they were on the same team, pitted against a squad from the North.

"It's a lot more fun playing with these guys than against them," said Thornburg of his two friends from South. "We know each other pretty well and have played together in the summer, but in something like this, it's different."

"This was fantastic," said David. "The best players from the whole state all together. Some of the guys who were picked just said they weren't interested in coming. But I wouldn't have missed it for anything."

If they had, the outcome might have been different.

Cahokia drops from loop

CAHOKIA — Cahokia High School has become the newest member of the Southwest Conference to announce its withdrawal from the league, effective after the next school year.

Earlier this year, Collinsville and Edwardsville voted to drop out of the loop. The withdrawal of Cahokia leaves only four teams in the Southwest Conference, Belleville, East and West, Alton and East St. Louis. The Illinois High School Association has made it a practice in the past not to recognize conferences with fewer than five members. The Cahokia withdrawal leads to further speculation of a new area conference which would include Granite City, North, Granite City South, Edwardsville and Belleville. Alton, Collinsville has not been mentioned in reports of the proposed new conference.

Soccer

kicked out two shots and lived to keep another one in about a 10-second span.

THE BEST CHANCE to score by each club came in the second half. At the 8:33 mark, the North's Dickey boomed a shot at the goal which had Lyon clearly beaten, but slammed into the left goal post and bounced away harmlessly. With about eight minutes remaining in the game, the South's Glen Siefert, a shot at the goal post on a shot from about 20 feet away.

Play was centered in the South's end of the field for a great part of the second half. "Our front line and back line seemed to be separating," said Busboom. "That left a gap in between them and the North was good to exploit it and get in for some good shots-on-goal." Busboom and his assistant, Dick Fleisher of Lyons Township High School, felt that the "glamour" of the all-star game might have gotten to the members of the team. "I think the guys got up here along the beautiful lake front and thought they'd go right out and stick a quick goal in the net at back and have a great time."

"It didn't quite work out that way."

"WE GOT in some trouble in the first half," said Fleisher. "We were afraid to go to the ball and got lunched up a bit. But we made some adjustments in the second half that helped out somewhat."

The final scoring chance of the game came with three minutes left and belonged to the North. Radamacher took a booming shot from about 30 feet out that Lyon dove to his right to knock away.

"I don't mind the scoreless tie," said David Goldschmidt. "I think we showed what we were worth. They didn't push us around like they thought they were going to."

"The Northern style of play is a lot different from what we play," added Mark Goldschmidt. "They play more physical-type game. We stick more to the short passing game and a little more skill."

AS HE sat down to rest after playing for nearly a solid 80 minutes, Thornburg grinned at his two friends from Granite City South and said, "I never thought I'd see the day when I'd put on a red jersey that had 'South' written on it."

The South all-stars were probably glad he did.

"It didn't quite work out that way."

"WE GOT in some trouble in the first half," said Fleisher. "We were afraid to go to the ball and got lunched up a bit. But we made some adjustments in the second half that helped out somewhat."

The final scoring chance of the game came with three minutes left and belonged to the North. Radamacher took a booming shot from about 30 feet out that Lyon dove to his right to knock away.

"I don't mind the scoreless tie," said David Goldschmidt. "I think we showed what we were worth. They didn't push us around like they thought they were going to."

"The Northern style of play is a lot different from what we play," added Mark Goldschmidt. "They play more physical-type game. We stick more to the short passing game and a little more skill."

AS HE sat down to rest after playing for nearly a solid 80 minutes, Thornburg grinned at his two friends from Granite City South and said, "I never thought I'd see the day when I'd put on a red jersey that had 'South' written on it."

The South all-stars were probably glad he did.

Lighting Fund Roadblock. Two employees of the city clerk's office in Granite City collect money during a roadblock last week for the benefit of the Granite City High School Sports Complex lighting fund. At left is Carla Greco and at right is Mona Callis. Several intersections in the city were manned during the two rush-hour periods by employees of the city. The city employees' efforts resulted in the collecting of approximately $1,600. This brings the fund total to $13,131.

8.9% hike in school bus costs

The same student bus contractor will continue to serve the Granite City school district next year, the Board of Education noted Tuesday night.

Tully A. Heubner, the district's director of business affairs, commented to the board. "As you are aware, last year the board approved a multi-year contract with R. W. Harmon and Sons for our contractual transportation services."

A part of the bid approved was a second-year cost increase not to exceed 10 percent. We have been notified by R. W. Harmon and Sons that our 1979-79 cost will be increased 8.9 percent.

"If the same routes and same number of buses are necessary for next year, this would increase our cost with them from $716,789 to $776,583, or $60,794. These charges are, of course, subject to change depending upon our transportation needs for next year."

State police stress safety on vacations

State Police Captain Albert J. Bertagnoli commented this weekend at Maryville, "Really looking forward to your vacation? Well, it's not surprising, because vacation should mean you can relax, forget about work and have all kinds of fun. "Rest, travel, cook-out, golf or swim — it's free time for adventure. But before you rush off, remember that accidents don't take vacations. Every year in the vacation months of June, July and August, accidents kill thousands and injure hundreds of thousands. Keep your vacation accident-free."

Capt. Bertagnoli gives this advice to all vacationers: "First, insure the safety of your home and belongings. Put away outside furniture, toys and other lawn equipment.

She is survived by her mother, Mrs. Mary Mueller of Granite City; one daughter, Mrs. Valerie Kintz of St. Louis; two sons, Steve Castaneda and Michael Kead, both of St. Louis. Also two brothers, Frank Mueller of Granite City and Ronald Mueller of Cahokia, and three sisters, Mrs. Rose Allen of Cahokia, Mrs. Betty Allen of St. Louis and Mrs. Patricia Miller of Granite City, one and a grandchild. Funeral services were held Wednesday. Details are given in the obituary column.

Phil, 3 1/2. Finally, my brethren, rejoice in the Lord.

It is true that the rain falls on the just and unjust alike. It is hard to comprehend that good people suffer as well as evildoers. It is harder to see the wicked prosper while many righteous go without. Do not forget, the coming of a day of judgment. The righteous shall receive their reward, and especially, the crown of eternal life. The wicked shall be punished.

In the meantime . . . rejoice. Rejoice in the Lord. When you have done all, and there is nothing else for you to do, rejoice. Finally, rejoice in the Lord.

Do it Today.

Chouteau ok's new budget

The Chouteau Town Board Tuesday night approved a new 1978-79 operating budget of $206,443 during a special meeting that followed a public hearing.

The final budget figure was an increase of $1,663 over the $204,760 total of the appropriation measure originally adopted by township officials, with all of the increase in the town fund.

Ten persons attended the public hearing in which board members agreed to make two changes in town fund items as well as changes in four items in the federal revenue sharing fund.

Those changes in the revenue sharing fund offset one another and the total of $66,000 budgeted in that account remained unchanged.

As finally approved, the new budget is $5,127 less than the total 1977-78 budget of $211,570. The new budget embodies increases in the town fund, the general assistance fund and the anti-recession fund, totaling $23,873, but these were offset by a reduction of $29,000 in the revenue sharing budget, accounting for the $5,127 reduction in the overall appropriation figure.

Changes in the town fund budget included a new figure of $8,448 for salaries for the board of trustees, up from an original figure of $7,040, and a new figure of $350 for postage, up from an original appropriation of $75.

There were no changes from the original budget for the general assistance fund, but in the federal revenue sharing fund the original item of $5,000 for kitchen and other permanent equipment in the town hall was decreased to $4,000, and similar figure of $5,000 for community activities also was reduced to $4,000.

Another change involved a $2,000 cut in the revenue sharing budget of $27,000 for repairs to roads, setting the new figure at $25,000. This made total budget cuts of $4,000 in the revenue sharing fund.

At the same time the board approved an entirely new budget item of $4,000 (the amount saved by the reductions) to pay ambulance fees under a contract between the township and the Granite City Ambulance Service. This left the federal revenue sharing total budget unchanged at $66,000.

Poodles do not live by table scraps alone

Q. I have an apricot poodle, 16 months old. He is a good, healthy dog. I bought him when he was five weeks old. He is from good stock. I take him to the veterinarian for checkups, shots, etc. He tells me to feed him dry food. I have bought all kinds, and so far he won't eat it. He likes Kellogg's mixed with weiners or meat of some kind, but although he seems healthy, I don't think this diet is good for him. I would appreciate your suggestions. — H.C.L.

A. Table scraps alone are not a balanced diet. Meat by itself must be supplemented with vegetable material containing vitamins, carbohydrates, calcium, etc. Perhaps you can gradually change the diet, first to a quality canned dog food. At that point, the diet then possibly can include some dry food mixed in or served separately for the dog to munch on throughout the day when he is hungry.

A letter from home

Dale Francis, a former Methodist, is a convert to Catholicism. For a number of years, he's edited Our Sunday Visitor, a Catholic weekly newspaper.

I heard Dale speak at the Governor's Prayer Breakfast in Springfield, Illinois, in 1978. He has long been a leader in the ecumenical movement.

"But because one believes in ecumenism doesn't mean we all must believe the same," he pointed out. "I'm a Catholic in every sense. Yet I'm no less a Catholic because I fellowship with someone who believes otherwise."

His point is that we can listen to each other, love each other and pray for each other even though we don't always believe exactly the same. This is good advice, for it will save us from elitism (a feeling we are superior to any who disagree with us).

In 1951, Dale Francis wrote a short poem, which you often see on greeting cards. Seldom is he credited as the author. He wrote it as a give-away piece for a radio show he was doing. I'm reprinting it here, for your reading enjoyment:

— May the road rise to meet you — May the wind be always at your back — And the rains fall softly on your fields.
— And until we meet again
— May God hold you
— in the palm of His hand.

Q. You recently disclosed the possibility that Leonard Nimoy would be back for the new "Star Trek" movie. I haven't heard a thing on this. What gives? — K.E.

A. Well, it's official. Nimoy will be in the new "Star Trek" movie doing his famous role of Spock.

Landscape instruction

Enrollment is now open for a landscape workshop to begin Thursday, July 13. The four-meeting series will be held at the Weinheimer Building, 1100 Main St., Highland and the programs will be from 7 to 9 each evening.

The workshop is geared to persons with new homes, or planning to re-landscape existing homes. The first meeting in the series covers "Identifying a Good Landscape."

The second session goes into the "Theory of Good Landscape Design." The third session deals with "Plant Materials for Southern Illinois" and the last session covers "Specific Landscape Designs For Your Home."

The four programs will be held on the evenings of July 13, 20 and 27 and Aug. 3. Wayne Siefert, University of Illinois area adviser in ornamental horticulture, will be the speaker.

COMMUNITY MENTAL HEALTH NURSE FUNDS

The School of Nursing at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville has been awarded $100,000 for continuing support of the school's graduate training program in psychiatric community mental health nursing, according to Dr. Kenneth A. Shaw, president of the University.

The grant will provide the second year of funding in a five-year project amounting to over a half million dollars, awarded to the School of Nursing last year by the National Institute of Mental Health. Grant funds will include provisions for personnel, consultant services, equipment, supplies and travel expenses, as well as 12 trainees stipends.

Season for mower, trimmer accidents

By MARY RICHARDS

Illinois Department of Public Health

During the ice and snow of the long, hard winter we experienced in Illinois, it seemed to some of us that the ground would never be green again. But, green it is — and the grass is growing — and growing — and growing!

With the growing of the grass comes the cutting of the grass. And with the cutting of the grass comes the injury factor caused by power mowers and powered hedge trimmers.

Last year, 72,000 Americans were injured extensively enough by mowers and trimmers to require emergency room treatment.

What caused these injuries? Serious lawn-mower accidents were caused by objects picked up and thrown by mowers; riding-type mowers tipping over when used on steep slopes; garden tractors or riding mowers used in reverse and running over or into innocent victims; and contact with the mower blade when clearing grass from the discharge chute or when adjusting the machine before the blades have fully stopped.

Victims of hedge-trimmer accidents were most often hurt while changing hand position with the trimmer still running, operating the trimmer with only one hand, or trying to hold the cord away from the blade.

The Illinois Department of Public Health has some lawn-mower and hedge-trimmer safety tips that may help avoid mower or trimmer accidents this summer.

Lawnmowers: When buying a power mower, make sure it has a rear guard to protect your hands and feet from blades, and a downward-aimed discharge chute so debris is less likely to hit anyone nearby.

Before mowing, rake up wires, cans, rocks, twigs or other litter that is cluttering the lawn.

Don't ever cut a wet lawn — since grass often clogs the discharge chute, tempting you to clear it while the machine is running.

Always turn the mower off and disconnect the sparkplug wire or electric plug before unclogging or adjusting the machine.

Never refuel a mower while it is running or the engine is hot. Mow across slopes if using a walk-behind mower — drive a riding mower up and down slopes.

Don't smoke near a power mower or near gasoline. Keep children and others out of the area being mowed.

Hedge trimmers: Buy a trimmer with cutting teeth and guards close enough together that your finger cannot fit between them. Be sure the trimmer has two handles, including a wide forward handle high above the cutting blade.

Make sure the trimmer is light enough for you to handle easily.

Do not stand on a chair or ladder while cutting bushes. Use a three-wire extension cord with three-pronged plugs. Never clean or adjust the trimmer while it is plugged in. Keep children and others out of your working area.

Don't rush your work. Hurrying increases your chances of injury.

If you want more information about mower and trimmer safety, write to: Illinois Department of Public Health, Product Safety Program, 535 W. Jefferson, Springfield 62761.

Love, marriage and the Social Security system

Two recent changes in the law will make Social Security more compatible with contemporary patterns of marriage and divorce.

One provision allows older couples to marry without adversely affecting their Social Security benefits.

Another makes it easier for a divorced wife to get Social Security benefits on a former husband's Social Security earnings record.

Although the changes do not take effect until January 1979, it's still important for people who may be affected to be aware of them so that they will not lose out on Social Security benefits.

Under the old law, a widow or widower who remarried at age 60 or later sometimes received a smaller benefit than he or she had been getting. As of January 1979, such a reduction will no longer occur.

The changes are expected to be helpful to many older couples.

Many had viewed the Social Security reduction in benefits as an unreasonable restraint on contemporary life styles of the retired.

With increased longevity and better health care, marriage in later years is becoming more common. Also, many older couples find it a matter of convenience to share living expenses and more practical not to be left alone, particularly in urban areas.

The second provision reduces the duration of marriage — required for an older divorced wife or surviving divorced wife to get benefits on her former husband's Social Security record — from 20 years to 10 years starting in January.

The rate of divorce in recent years has meant that a large number of women were being left with no Social Security coverage when their marriages broke up after less than 20 years. About 45,000 women are expected to benefit from the change in 1979.

People who think they might be affected by the coming changes may contact the Social Security office for more information. The address is 650 Missouri Ave., East St. Louis, or Quad-City area call 274-4100 or Enterprise 1-555.

Legislative forum for senior citizens

(Office of Lieutenant Governor Dave O'Neil)

Q. I have heard that the Lieutenant governor is reorganizing his Senior Advisory Council. Is this true?
A. Yes. The non-partisan council, which was created in September 1977, has been renamed the Senior Citizens Legislative Forum and formal bylaws have been adopted.

The name of the council was changed to better illustrate the responsibilities of the organizations. Currently, 13 organizational meetings are being held throughout the state with representatives from senior citizen groups that have been contacted by the lieutenant governor's office. Senior citizen organizations throughout the state will be represented.

Q. What are the reasons for reorganization?
A. The primary purpose is to obtain increased local input on the needs of the elderly from seniors themselves. There presently exists no direct channel of regular communication for the concerned senior.

With regularly scheduled meetings in each region of the state, the result should be frequent up-to-date reports from each regional governor. The concerns of the senior citizens themselves, in executive and legislative branches of state government. The forum is a sounding board for seniors across the state. It will continue to act not only in the capacity of a troubleshooter, defining problems of senior citizens at their on-set, but also in a creative and innovative fashion formulating new methods of approaching senior citizen problems.

Q. What is the formal structure of the Legislative Forum under the new bylaws?
A. Only those senior citizen organizations with a bona fide active membership of 25 individuals or more will be allowed to appoint a representative to serve on a Forum committee.

Ex-officio members — such as the local directors of legal aid societies, Title VII project directors (nutrition site directors), local housing authority boards, Community Action Agency directors and County Councils on Aging members — are invited to participate on Forum committees, but do not have any official voting privileges.

The lieutenant governor serves as chairman of the Forum. There will be 13 elected regional governors serving as coordinators in each of the 13 designated areas, as outlined by the regional boundaries of the Illinois Area Agencies on Aging.

Serving under the direction of a regional governor will be six standing committee chairmen who will chair the following committees: income maintenance, health and nutrition, housing, transportation, social services, and consumerism.

Standing committee chairmen will be elected by the at-large regional forum membership. An annual meeting of the regional governors and standing committee chairmen will be called by the lieutenant governor.

The regional governor will call a minimum of one annual regional meeting of all forum members to discuss regional policy and priorities.

Smith sales, earnings up

A. O. Smith Corporation expects to report record sales and profits for the second quarter and first six months of 1978, it was announced here today.

L. B. Smith, chairman and chief executive officer, said all major operating units, except one affected by a strike, will contribute significantly to the record results.

"We are delighted to be having such a fine first half," Smith said, "and as it looks now, we expect the balance of the year to remain strong, although historically the third quarter is the low point of the year for us and that won't change in 1978."

Smith also reported he expects profits to be substantially improved from the same period in 1977, although still not reaching the objectives management has set for the corporation.

He estimated earnings in the second quarter at $9,100,000 to $9,800,000, or from $1.85 to $2 per share, an increase of at least 30 percent over a year ago when the company earned $6,918,000, or $1.41 per share.

Sales in the second quarter will amount to about $220,000,000 and $15,726,000, or $3.06 to $3.21 per share, on sales of $41,000,000. In the first six months of 1977, the company earned $11,652,000, or $2.38 per share, on sales of $389,472,000.

The company's largest operating unit, the Automotive Division, will have dollar sales about level with a year ago for both the quarter and the half, but profits will be improved over the same periods in 1977. This is due to the absence of the effects of model changes, and to improved operating efficiencies at the division's plants in Milwaukee and Granite City. The division is the nation's largest manufacturer of automobile and truck frames.

BEFORE THE VOLKSMARSH. "It's a fun event," says Major David Toth, M.D., of Granite City, as he exhibits the technique used during a volkmarsh. "And anyone can participate—family, friends, joggers—the whole community."

Directions—put one foot in front of the other foot

It's the latest thing everybody's doing it—even the "jet set." But it's been around for awhile.

You simply put one foot in front of the other and, before you know it, you're doing it. It's called walking.

This early form of exercise has become a worldwide sponsored event by the International Volkspart Verband (IVV)—the International Federation for Popular Sport. That's the word from a Granite City flight surgeon with the Aerospace Medical Research Laboratory at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio. He is Major David Toth, M.D., an active participant in the IVV and member of the board of directors for the U.S. Volkspart program.

"The IVV is a non-profit organization that originated in Germany," said Dr. Toth. "The only sanctioned IVV chapter in the U.S. is in Fredericksburg, Tex., and we're hoping to see southwestern Ohio as the site of the second sanctioned chapter." Headquartered in West Germany with membership from 12 countries, the 10-year-old IVV provides opportunities for fun, exercise and meeting people.

Its popular events are bicycling, swimming, cross-country skiing and the volkmarsh.

What is a volkmarsh? According to Dr. Toth, it's a leisurely walk of at least 6.2 miles routed through forest or scenic areas.

It's good exercise. It's a community-oriented event.

It's a chance to travel and meet new friends. "And most of all," he said, "it's fun."

"It's the type of thing you can participate in without having to learn a new skill," said Dr. Toth.

"In Germany, it was not uncommon for a weekend volkmarsh to draw anywhere from 6,000 to 8,000 participants ranging from 18 months to 81 years old."

Dr. Toth has briefed many organizations on the volkmarsh program, including the West Milton Jaycees, the director of the Central YMCA in Dayton, the American Heart Association and, most recently, the director of the Air Force museum, who supports the idea of a volkmarsh originating at the museum.

"Everyone's enthusiastic about the idea," said Dr. Toth. "If we get Air Force approval, we'll have our first volkmarsh at Wright-Patterson sometime near the end of September."

In a volkmarsh, everyone travels at his or her own pace, the only stipulation being that everyone crosses the finish line before nightfall.

Each participant receives a medal or plaque at the end of the event, refreshments during the event, and an IVV participation stamp for his or her entry fee, usually $2 to $5.

Dr. Toth walked 620 miles and received 60 medals and plaques during his European days.

"Probably half the participants in the events were U.S. military stationed in Europe," noted Dr. Toth.

"The volkmarsh was addicting. People traveled long distances to participate."

How can one get involved? Anyone can sponsor or co-sponsor an IVV event, including churches, Jaycees, Chambers of Commerce, school, scouts and, actually, any interested group.

Explorers to hold sale

Collections have been started by members of Explorer Post 10-4 for what is being planned as a fund-raising flea market and garage sale in the Quad-Cities. The event is scheduled to be held in the air-conditioned Madison Memorial Center, Seventh and Lee streets, from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. on Saturday, July 28.

Items for sale will include tools, furniture, antiques, clothing and small appliances, according to William Kinkel, post president.

Proceeds will go toward the activities of the Explorers.

APARTMENT BURGLARY
About $62 worth of currency and coins were stolen during a burglary at the apartment of Thomas Stanford, 2228a Grand Ave., between 9 a.m. Thursday and 10 p.m. Friday. Stanford returned home to find the front and rear doors open. There were no signs of forced entry. The bills included some considered collector's items.

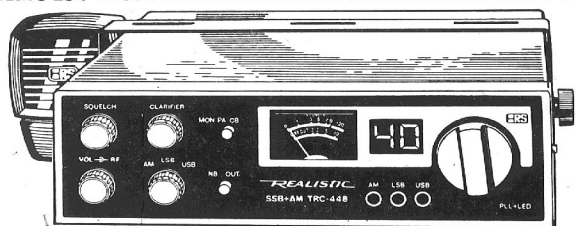

AFTER THE VOLKSMARSH. After traversing the 6.2 or 12-mile volkmarsh, Dr. Toth firmly believes in a little rest and relaxation.

Specialized Services is accredited

Specialized Services, Inc., a workshop for the handicapped, has received a three-year accreditation from the Commission of Accreditation of Rehabilitation Facilities. It was announced today by Bob Dow, president of the Board of Directors of Specialized Services.

The accreditation consists of a self-study and evaluation by the rehabilitation facility, followed by an on-site visit by a survey consultation team, Dow said. The survey team examines such areas as the facilities' role in the community, array of services provided, program objectives, staff, fiscal reports and physical plant. It reports its findings to the full commission, which then makes an accreditation determination.

There are three types of accreditations — 12-month conditional, one year and three years. Specialized Services received the highest quality accreditation possible.

The board, staff, clients and community were complimented for providing "highest quality rehabilitation services."

Established in 1961 with four clients, by a group of parents, Specialized Services today serves approximately 300 clients from Madison County each day, with workshops in both Alton and Granite City.

Pyramiding of pollution spending and costs threatens steel productivity and technology

(Second of two articles by Chairman Edgar B. Speer of the United States Steel Corporation.)

Steelmakers are spending more and getting less new production technology. And potentially improved costs and productivity through new technology are being partly offset by the higher costs and manpower requirements of environmental controls.

About ten percent of the steel industry's total capital expenditures in the decade prior to 1977 were used to install pollution control equipment. Last year, that figure had climbed to about 20 percent, and it will go higher.

The industry has already authorized pollution control spending for this year and beyond that is in excess of $800 million.

At U.S. Steel, we will have spent more than a billion dollars on environmental facilities by the end of this year. The first half-billion was spread out over a 20-year period, but has taken only five years of mandated pollution spending to add the second half-billion — and more.

Just a few years ago, when U.S. Steel installed new "Q-BOP" steelmaking facilities at our Fairfield works in Alabama, the installation had a cost benefit index of about $1.00 per pound of dust collected each hour.

Last month, when a new hot-metal mixer was placed in operation at the same plant, the cost benefit index on that piece of equipment had taken a quantum jump — to more than $400,000 per pound of dust collected per hour.

This isn't an isolated case. The round of pollution spending that's just now getting under way is designed primarily to eliminate so-called fugitive emissions from steel facilities.

All across the industry, steel company pollution control engineers are submitting cost estimates many times greater than the figure that has been spent to get us where we are now.

The government's own study of the American steel industry made late last year placed the current costs of meeting environmental standards at about $8 per ton of production.

The study went on to say that in the next few years, those costs could rise to something between $18 and $33 per ton, and represent as much as five to ten percent of steel production costs.

I'm not suggesting that the American steel industry be permitted to stop all spending on pollution controls.

I think the industry has demonstrated its commitment to eliminating pollution wherever it is technically and financially possible to do so.

But technical and financial ability have very little to do with environmental demands today.

The standards have been set at near-zero levels of air and water pollution. Yet, no one in Washington seems to know or care whether the results will justify the tremendous burden of costs... whether we can afford it in view of other needs for capital... or even whether the objective itself is technically feasible.

Frankly, all set this worries me. And it should worry research people and engineers in the American steel industry. This pyramiding of pollution spending and costs — with its effect on steel productivity — will have a growing impact on both the development and application of new steel technology.

As important as it may be to continue the progress already made in eliminating pollution from our environment, it is no less important that basic industry like steel continue the progress already made in producing better products, more efficiently, through better technology.

Steelmakers of not so many years ago would have had a difficult time comprehending some of the technical subjects now being discussed — AOD... Q-BOP... Q-BOP... direct reduction.

We've come a long way, and we've got a long way yet to go.

Steelmaking is far too energy-intensive. Much remains to be done in reducing energy consumption and the energy lost through the cooling and reheating that must occur at various stages in the production process.

The time is not too distant when economies will force steel producers to reduce their dependence on oil and natural gas which now account for 25 percent of steel plant energy.

Studies in which U.S. Steel has been engaged indicate that all the energy required in a steel plant could be supplied from our plants' purchased electricity produced from steam coal.

Each plant might use a direct steelmaking process, but a lot of research and technical progress must fall in place before this can be done.

My point is that there is a tremendous need for new technology in steelmaking.

But our ability to develop that technology and apply it is keyed directly to our ability to produce products that will be competitive in world steel markets.

We can do that only if we achieve the lowest possible unit costs through the highest possible increases in productivity. And that depends on how much capital is available for investment in more efficient productive equipment.

In some respects it is a vicious circle. The more we raise levels of productivity... to lower unit costs... to increase sales... to gain more profit... to generate more capital... to invest in more technology... to achieve still better productivity.

It sometimes seems that Americans are a crisis-oriented people — that we tolerate unhealthy economic situations and act only when they reach crisis proportions.

Last year's crisis in steel imports, growing out of 20 years of ill-advised trade policies by government, may tend to prove the point.

The situation that I'm discussing must not be allowed to reach that point. If our steel industry ever begins to lose its competitive strength, we will be on our way to losing the whole ball game.

That would be a tragic loss for this country and its economy — for many other industries in America — and for many other nations the world as well.

Somewhat, we have got to prevail upon Congress and the Administration to take a long, hard look at current environmental regulations, policies and objectives.

Somewhat, we have got to convince them that we are headed for serious problems, if we are forced to continue at the current pace and to absorb the growing costs of existing pollution control standards and timetables.

At the very best, it would be in the nation's best interest to establish two sets of standards — a more lenient set for existing facilities and another set that would apply when new steelmaking facilities are built.

I fail to see either the logic or the economic sense in retrofitting older facilities — that are rapidly approaching the end of their useful life — with sophisticated and costly pollution controls.

Such a requirement only reduces the competitiveness of those plants, shortens their life and threatens the economic future of the communities where they are located.

Frankly, I think too many members of our industry, for too long a time, have considered this whole pollution problem to be the sole responsibility of top management.

I can tell from my own experience that Washington is less impressed by what business executives think and say than it is by the opinions and expressions of a great number of people all up and down the line.

I mention this for obvious reasons. It seems to me that people who are involved in generating technical progress should become deeply involved as well in eliminating the political barriers that are getting in the way of applying that technology.

My purpose in discussing these matters is not to lay additional burdens on the shoulders of research and engineering people in the American steel industry. I'm well aware of the pressures and heavy schedules that most of them now have.

The more we study productivity — and the more we analyze the factors which cause it to increase or which pull it down — the more it becomes apparent that it is a very complex subject.

It is equally true that productivity has become as much a national problem and concern as it is a serious question in steel.

Certainly, it involves a great deal more than the proper combinations of technology, capital investment and employee attitudes to generate the highest possible yield.

It is sometimes said, for example, that managers are paid primarily for managing productivity, since everything else depends on the quality of the work we do in business — everything done anywhere in our economy ultimately affects the productivity of our plants, our industry, our nation.

It is not so much efficiency, as it is effectiveness. It is the effective use of all our resources — people... production facilities... materials... laboratory equipment... capital.

It can be helped or hindered not only by the attitudes of people doing the job, but by the actions of government to (1) moderate inflation, (2) promote economic expansion and (3) develop tax laws that will stimulate both the formation and investment of capital.

In short, productivity is a common thread that runs through the business process and our national economy.

It affects us all, and it requires input from every individual who contributes to the production and marketing of goods and services.

But in our private, capital-oriented system, the most important ingredient continuing to be the investment of capital in new technology. Only by doing what we do better than we have ever done it before, can we remain competitive in domestic and world markets.

By increasing the efficiency of our production process can we become more effective in generating the sales, the revenues, the profits, the capital that create jobs and market demand, and keep the whole process moving forward.

I have been a part of the steel industry of this country for 40 years. From what I know of the history of our industry, I can't imagine a more fascinating time to have been active in the steel business.

But I am convinced that — as far as we have come in advancing steel technology and increasing the versatility of steel as a material — there is still a considerable distance to go.

I want to see the American steel industry prosper. I want to challenge the knowledge and imaginations of all the technical people who are working to create better materials, better processes, better steel products.

I want our industry to be competitive with steel made anywhere in the world. And I want that not simply to inflate our "Yankee" egos — but rather, to contribute what we can to economic and social progress everywhere in the Free World.

Perhaps that is being idealistic. But it is also pragmatic, for as I said earlier, we must be competitive if we are to survive.

I think it is our industry's greatest challenge — and our greatest opportunity in the decades ahead.

July appeals on property assessments

The State of Illinois Property Tax Appeal Board — created to afford taxpayers and interested taxing bodies a quasi-judicial administrative remedy from county Board of Review decisions — will be busy this summer and fall.

In all counties except Cook County, the State Appeal Board has established rules for an informal procedure to determine the correct assessment of property which is the subject of appeal.

Persons dissatisfied with property assessments can appeal to their county Boards of Review after July 1.

The State Board can hear only those cases that are appealed within the local county's decision within 30 days from receipt of those decisions.

State Board hearings are held in county seats and taxpayers may employ attorneys if they wish.

Members of the State Appeal Board are based on equity and the weight of the evidence. All decisions of the State Board are subject to administrative review in the circuit court.

Appeals rules and forms are available from Board of Review offices.

Elevator explosion research

In the wake of a number of grain elevator explosions during the past crop year, government regulatory agencies may be "jumping the gun" in their zeal to guard against such disasters in the future, according to Walter Wills, SIUC professor of agricultural industries.

There is general agreement that some combination of dust in a grain storage facility forms an explosive mixture that may be set off by a spark from any origin, but Wills said this is a superficial explanation. He thinks there is a serious need for research into the situation before further rules are imposed on elevator operators.

A comprehensive study of the problem is under way at Kansas State University, but "elevators may be stuck with a set of mandatory regulations before the results of this research are available," according to Wills.

"Developing a solution to a problem before knowing the cause is an excellent example of a technocratic bureaucracy that is more concerned with doing something than with solving problems," he asserted.

Concern about the problem reached major proportions last winter when explosions rocked large grain storage facilities in Galveston, Tex., and New Orleans, La., within a week of each other around Christmas. During that same week, a Rindard man lost his life in Southern Illinois when a Wayne City elevator exploded.

Experts in the grain business have both experience and data to suggest there are probably critical upper and lower limits to a number of variable factors that contribute to the explosive mixtures often found in grain storage facilities, Wills said. Research such as that going on at Kansas State is needed to determine these limits, he is convinced.

Some of the factors believed to be involved are temperature, humidity, the size of the dust particles from the grain, the concentration of dust and the kind of grain stored.

As an example of how these factors may interact, Wills said there is evidence to suggest that a change in one of the such as humidity, would result in changing the critical limits of each of the other factors.

Grain — each seed itself a living organism — might be expected to give off a certain amount of gas while in storage. Wills thinks the accumulation of such gas might contribute to explosive recipes.

Increasing amounts of grain are being dried following harvest. This, also, may contribute to the danger of explosion, he said.

There has been speculation that some filter systems which are used to keep dust out of the air in elevators may increase the danger of explosion. This needs to be investigated, according to Wills.

"The dust filters may be doing a fine job of controlling air pollution, but may be increasing the danger of explosions at the same time," he said.

Until research unlocks the mystery, Wills thinks good housekeeping — not regulations — is the way to go.

This would include: —Dust control (filter systems cleaned and serviced religiously).

—Ignition control (sparks from electric motors, etc.).

—Avoidance of welding and burning in or near the elevator.

—Installation of systems to detect electrical failures.

—Smoking restrictions.

—Provision of employee training in putting out small fires.

—Control devices to avoid the overheating of equipment.

—Monitoring for slowdowns and plugging.

Country elevators, terminal elevators, export elevators and processing plants are important parts of the grain marketing, processing and distribution business — important to the success of agriculture and the cost of food to the consumer, Wills said.

He is certain that a proper understanding of elevator explosion causes will make it possible to protect the interests of the industry and consumers and also protect the health and lives of grain handlers.

Kiwanians plan hole-in-one golf tourney

The annual Breakfast Kiwanis Club "hole-in-one" golf tournament will be held Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 5 and 6, at the Arlington Golf Club. Tickets will be sold by club members for $1 each and prizes will be awarded.

At the Thursday morning business meeting of the club a letter informing the breakfast club that the Glen Carbon Kiwanis Club will be celebrating its 25th anniversary as a Kiwanis Club, and inviting members to a dinner dance Saturday, July 8, was read.

The club voted to send two Reddy Boy Scouts to Camp Sunn for a week, and a discussion was held on the purchase of a Kiwanis wall clock for the Pie Cupboard Restaurant wall, where the group's meetings are held.

The Kiwanians also made a donation to the Cancer Foundation in honor of Kiwanian Ray Grisham's father, Leland, who died June 22.

Assistance phone line for disabled

An effort is being made by the Illinois Division of Vocational Rehabilitation to have more handicapped residents receive assistance, with the creation of Illinois DIAL (Disabled Individuals Assistance Line).

"During the next several months, an all-out effort is being made to inform all persons, including individuals with disabilities, that a collect telephone call can be made to (312) 793-5000 to report any need of any disabled person," IDVR Director James S. Jeffers said this week.

"In the past, as with the circuit breaker for senior citizens, it has been difficult to convince residents that they can dial (312) 793-5000 collect to report that a handicapped person they know is in need of some type of assistance."

"Calls may be made from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. It is hoped that this effort will help coordinate programs for the handicapped."

"At present, there are a number of programs throughout the state, some of which cannot provide all needed services. Hence, with the DIAL program, all requests and inquiries will be made to one source — the state of Illinois."

"There are a number of handicapped persons on the staff of the DIAC program, including Project Manager Hiram Zayas."

MARDI GRAS DANCE, MUSIC EXTRAVAGANZA

"Fat Tuesday and All That Jazz!", a New Orleans Mardi Gras dance and music extravaganza, airs 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, July 4 and at 2 p.m. Sunday, July 9, on TV Channel 9. The Arthur Hall Dance Ensemble and the Dejan Olympia Brass Band from New Orleans' famed Preservation Hall are featured.

"Fat Tuesday" is called a colorful and spirited ballet theater that touches on African and Haitian origins of American dance and is set in New Orleans at Mardi Gras time. "The dances are about as authentic as you're going to get," according to Arthur Hall, the choreographer, who took his Philadelphia-based dance company to West Africa to learn the African dances and to Haiti to learn a voodoo dance.

Polish-American art exhibit

Quad-Cityans have been invited to attend an open house and Polish-American art exhibit presented by CEMREL, Inc., an educational laboratory which sponsors the 59th Street Gallery in St. Louis.

The event is scheduled Sunday from 5 to 7 p.m. at the Gallery, 3120 Fifty-ninth St., St. Louis. The exhibition is part of an ethnic heritage study program being developed by CEMREL in cooperation with the Polish American Cultural Society of St. Louis and the Polish American Congress, Illinois Division.

The exhibit is to be featured through July. After the open house Sunday, a concert, "Music at Sundown," featuring music by Polish composers, will be presented in nearby Sublette Park. A photographic display of objects and artifacts representing the folk culture and village crafts of Poland is exhibited with the art objects.

Like a good neighbor, State Farm is there.

Air traffic rising, Lambert doomed to one-runway status

(Second of two reports by Arven H. Saunders, executive director of the St. Louis Metropolitan Area Airport Authority, to the Missouri Pilots Association.)

We were criticized when we pointed to the folly of the "Lambert 2000 Plan" which was suddenly presented just a few weeks before the so-called referendum held in the fall of 1972.

That plan promised an airport with the capacity of the new one at Dallas-Fort Worth. Where would this airport be? Right at Lambert, with a bit of the McDonnell Douglas property thrown in.

What did experts hired by the City of St. Louis say after the referendum?

They said the 2000 Plan would not work. And what else came out after the referendum? The plan apparently would have cost the area 18,000 McDonnell Douglas jobs.

Lambert 2000 has not been heard from since. But before anyone realized it had been buried, attention was directed toward a new master plan study being conducted by the Ralph M. Parsons Company.

Again, this study promised major capacity increases at Lambert. And again we found what we felt were serious flaws. And again we were criticized.

Where is the Parsons Plan today? Who knows?

Now that the old 1970 Plan is finally being carried out, we still find ourselves in an unpopular position of closely examining official comments about Lambert's potential.

In December 1977, a letter from the administrator responsible for the operation and development of Lambert appeared in the Post-Dispatch discussing the airport's capacity.

He described the 1,300-foot separation between Lambert's parallel runways in relation to the Federal Aviation Administration requirement of a minimum separation of 4,300 feet between the centerlines of parallel runways for simultaneous use in instrument conditions.

The letter alluded to potential improvements in technology that might one day permit simultaneous use of Lambert's parallel runways despite the 1,300-foot separation.

In support of this possible eventual, he wrote, "For example, the distance between the parallel runways at Rhein Main Air Base, Frankfurt, Germany, one of the world's busiest airports, is 1,640 feet with dual simultaneous ILS landings permitted."

We have checked with the responsible officials in Frankfurt, and this is the written response:

"The distance between the runways at Rhein Main Airport is 1,700 feet. This distance does not permit simultaneous IFR approaches on the two parallel runways."

FAA has also looked into this matter and in response advises that:

"We are informed by the West German Embassy that simultaneous ILS approaches are not used."

"The parallel ILS approaches are in use at the same time, but with aircraft 'staggered' to assure a minimum of three miles radar separation. This same information was also received from our Flight Standards Service which has a field office in Frankfurt, West Germany."

So, the prospect of simultaneous use of Lambert's parallel runways seems remote — at least on the basis of what is done in Frankfurt.

And, meanwhile, major new pressures on Lambert are being generated by fare deregulation. For instance, when Delta Air Lines announced its thirty-fifty fare between St. Louis and Chicago Midway, they began with two round-trip DC-9 operations a day. An 800 percent gain in the number of passengers using this service has resulted in the addition of a third flight.

Airline passenger growth this year has increased an average of 19.5 percent nationally over the same period last year.

For instance, Braniff reports a 19.5 percent increase over last May. Frontier — 19.6 percent, TWA — 15.5 percent, American — 19.1 percent, Delta — 26.5 percent, Eastern — 30.8 percent, and the list goes on.

By way of comparison, from 1964 through 1977 the average annual compound rate of growth in traffic was 7.7 percent.

So these numbers amount to growth at the rate of two to four times the rate for the past 15 years.

And with the proliferation of discount fares, we may look forward to further acceleration in the growth rates over the next several months.

The Civil Aeronautics Board has studied the predictable increases in traffic and has not at all surprised by them.

For instance, with a price reduction of 10 percent, CAB says 20 percent more traffic can be expected.

But using a price reduction figure of 50 percent, for example, CAB says a whopping 200 percent increase in traffic could result.

Since Lambert Field is the region's only air carrier airport, it stands to reason that many operations not directly related to the air carriers' requirements will be forced off the field.

More important, the added number of operations, air carrier or otherwise, will exceed that air field's capability regardless of whether new taxiways, additional ramp area, or runway extensions are constructed — air traffic control procedural changes notwithstanding.

During IFR conditions, Lambert is now capable of a maximum of 58 operations.

Even with a 20-25 percent increase in capacity, as may be identified by an FAA task force now in progress, Lambert would realize only 70 maximum IFR operations an hour.

This is considerably below the 88 espoused by the PMM study in 1972 (despite the 1985) assumed in the Parsons Master Plan.

Lambert is and will continue to be a major factor in the one-runway airport — hemmed in on all sides and unable to meet future operational demands.

Lambert faces only a short-term future as an adequate air carrier airport at Columbia-Waterloo, Ill., to service the entire region.

Fortunately, the St. Louis area has an alternative to this dilemma of mounting general and commercial aviation needs. That alternative is a major new air carrier airport at Columbia-Waterloo, Ill., to service the entire region.

The development of that airport would in no way trigger a demise of Lambert Field.

Quite to the contrary, it would free Lambert to become one of the nation's foremost general aviation facilities. It must remain a valuable and integral service to the entire air transportation network.

Examples of this abound — such as O'Hare and Midway, Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport and Love Field, Kansas City International and Kansas City Municipal, and Houston Intercontinental and Hobby Airport.

Where would Chicago be if it had elected Midway forever? I believe the Houston Intercontinental Hobby Interface portrays well the transformation of an air carrier airport to a general aviation airport.

In June 1968, all the air carriers serving Houston moved overnight to the new Intercontinental Airport, leaving Hobby to serve general aviation alone. Operations there have grown to a point where last year the airport handled over 322,000 versus about 314,000 operations at its peak when it was the only air carrier airport serving that city.

Hobby has become a focal point for general aviation in that region of the country.

Lambert Field is a valuable asset to this area and there is a vital future for Lambert.

However, with the advent of airline deregulation, the increase in general aviation operations and aircraft, the decrease in airport facilities for these aircraft, and the constrained air carrier conditions at Lambert Field, we are entering a whole new ball game.

A new airport at the federally-approved Columbia-Waterloo site, in addition to its benefits for airline passengers and general aviation use, could assure the economic viability of St. Louis as a region.

The classic parallel is Greater Cincinnati Airport, located "across the river" in Kentucky.

The Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce readily admits that the revitalization of the downtown area and overall area development is, at least in part, attributable to the airport's influence in stemming a trend to develop toward the north only.

"We claim the ban on licensing is a violation of our rights under the First, Fourth, Fifth, Ninth and Fourteenth Amendments to the U.S. Constitution," according to a spokesman for the Home Opportunity for the Pregnancy Experience in Wauconda.

"Our initial thrust was toward the judicial system. We filed a class action suit in federal court Sept. 12, 1977, charging the midwifery laws are unconstitutional."

"Two groups of plaintiffs included pregnant couples who wished to have midwives attend their births at home, and women who wish to be licensed as midwives. The defendant is the Illinois Department of Registration and Education (IDRE)."

"The first hearing was held Oct. 12. At that time, IDRE filed a motion for dismissal."

Judge Frank J. McGarr, who was presiding, did allow Dr. Gregory White, a Franklin Park home birth doctor, to testify about his belief that adequately educated professional midwives with proper medical back-up can function safely. On Nov. 30, Judge McGarr ruled for the dismissal.

"Our organization filed an appeal of that decision. The appeal was heard in Federal Appellate Court on June 6, 1978."

"A decision of the appeal will be written within a month or two. If the ruling is positive, the suit will be returned to District Court for full hearings."

"Simultaneously with the suit, we have been working with state legislators, specifically Rep. Donald E. Deuster (R), 32nd District, to introduce new midwifery legislation in Springfield."

"Our organization has provided guidance in preparation of this legislation."

It is up to those of you who know the aviation facts to help secure the kind of air transportation facilities the St. Louis region deserves — and that a number of other regions already enjoy.

We are moving toward a new plateau of airport activity at Lambert which adds urgency to the re-evaluation of Transportation Secretary Adams' decision regarding the need for a new airport to serve this region.

For the reasons given, and for many others, there is a dire need for re-evaluating the Columbia-Waterloo option.

The future of air transportation — general aviation and commercial — in this region hangs in the balance.

WORLD PREMIERE AT JULY 4TH CONCERT

The St. Louis Symphony Orchestra's annual 4th of July concert will be highlighted this year by the world premiere of Robert Charles Howard's "Gateway Overture." It will perform under the Gateway Arch at 8 p.m.

Howard, of St. Louis Community College-Meramec, has dedicated this piece to Maestro Gerhard Zimmermann and the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. The overture is for and about St. Louis, Howard comments.

"It reflects my warm feelings toward the city and the great spirit of adventure that characterizes its history."

6½-POUND BASS is displayed by Wayne Banks of Granite City. Ainaid Shrine Temple assistant administrator. He caught the fish last week using small tackle, while boating with Don Adams. Location was the Dempsey-Adams clubhouse on the Lake of the Ozarks, near Rocky Mount.

Midwife law change sought

An organization, incorporated as non-profit and tax exempt in Illinois, is dedicated to changing the state's midwifery laws.

Midwives were licensed in Illinois under a subsection of the Medical Practice Act until Aug. 2, 1965. At that time, a "grandfather clause," which stated no new midwifery licenses would be issued, was added to the statute.

"We claim the ban on licensing is a violation of our rights under the First, Fourth, Fifth, Ninth and Fourteenth Amendments to the U.S. Constitution," according to a spokesman for the Home Opportunity for the Pregnancy Experience in Wauconda.

"Our initial thrust was toward the judicial system. We filed a class action suit in federal court Sept. 12, 1977, charging the midwifery laws are unconstitutional."

Federal tax coordinator available

Taxpayers who feel their problems are not receiving prompt and appropriate attention from the Internal Revenue Service can contact the IRS' Problem Resolution Office.

According to District Director Ira S. Loeb, the Problem Resolution Office, established a year ago, has handled more than 350 cases where taxpayers were experiencing difficulty getting their problems resolved through normal IRS channels.

"The problem resolution program is not a substitute for normal procedures or the tax appeal process, nor is it a substitute for deciding or resolving technical questions," Loeb said.

This procedure should be used only after an individual has previously contacted the IRS by telephone, or mail, or by a visit to an IRS office."

Taxpayers may contact Tom McMurray, the problem resolution coordinator, if they feel their problem has not been dealt with properly. His primary function is to handle unresolved taxpayer problems with minimum delay.

Some of the most common types of problems the coordinator controls are billing and payment credit misunderstandings, excessive delays in obtaining refunds, and failure by IRS to respond properly to taxpayer communications.

The problem resolution coordinator may be reached at the IRS district headquarters office at 325 W. Adams St., Springfield 61104, or by calling the IRS toll-free number, 800-252-2921.

Man, 22, named on two charges

Jerry R. Sedabres, 22, of 3202 Kirkpatrick, Romea, was released Monday from custody on $70 cash bond after being charged with criminal trespass and property and disorderly conduct.

Betty Sorenson, 2431 Lincoln Ave., told police that Sedabres' wife, Glenda, was visiting her home Sunday night and alleged Sedabres forced his way into the home, bothered both women and then left before police arrived.

Five minutes later, he allegedly was back, hitting the front door. Police arrived and he ran around the rear of the home and escaped, it was alleged.

Officers said he was seen about five minutes later in the 2400 block of East 24th Street, walking toward Lincoln Avenue. He returned to the front porch of the Sorenson home, but fled again when officers approached, it was alleged.

He was apprehended nearby and Mr. Sorenson signed a complaint against him alleging criminal trespass to property.

Police filed the disorderly conduct charge.
